The Arts and Islamic Culture

This lecture series will offer a multifaceted view of the arts in Islamic culture, illustrating the wide range of Islamic art and architecture, and the understanding of visual imagery in diverse Muslim contexts.

March 11: Religious Art, Perception, and Practice in Islam

Jamal Elias, Class of 1965 Endowed Term Professor of Religious Studies, University of Pennsylvania, will open the series and set the stage for our look at art and Islam. He will explore the complexity inherent in Islamic attitudes toward religious art and how visual imagery is understood in diverse Muslim and comparative contexts.

April 15: Past in Present: Building in the Islamic World Today

Renata Holod, College for Women Class of 1963 Term Professor in the Humanities, University of Pennsylvania, is a specialist in the study of the visual culture of the Islamic world and has conducted archaeological and architectural field work in Iran, Syria, Morocco, Uzbekistan, Turkey and Tunisia. She will discuss new trends in Islamic architecture.

April 22: Luxurious Layers: An Exploration of Islamic Textiles

Rose Muravchick, a Ph.D. candidate in Religious Studies at the University of Pennsylvania and Graduate Assistant at Penn’s Center for Ancient Studies specializes in the study of Islamic textile arts. She will discuss the pervasive presence of decorative textiles within the visual culture of the Islamic world and beyond.

April 29: Volatile Spaces and Fractured Heritage: Thinking about National Heritage in a Time of War

Uzma Z. Rizvi is an Assistant Professor of Anthropology and Urban Studies in the Department of Social Science and Cultural Studies at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, New York. Dr. Rizvi's work spans topics of Archaeology, Anthropology, Urban Studies, and Critical and Visual Studies. In this talk she will be looking at contemporary Iraq and the effects of war on a contemporary city landscape, reformulating the ways in which we understand the construction of national heritage.

May 6: Art of the Qur'an: Writing and Ornamenting the Divine Word

Yael Rice received her Ph.D. in History of Art from the University of Pennsylvania in 2011, and is currently the Five College Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow in Islamic Art at Amherst College and Hampshire College. She specializes in the arts of Iran and South Asia, with particular interests in the arts of the book, portraiture, and depictions of dreams. This richly illustrated talk will explore how Qur'an manuscripts were made and used during the first centuries of Islam.

The CCLR is proud to partner with Penn Museum's International Classroom Program and The American Research Institute in Turkey (ARIT) and the Penn Middle East Center in offering this program.

Funding for this activity was provided by the Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC) through a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York. CAORC is a not-for-profit consortium of twenty-three independent overseas research centers that promote advanced research in the humanities and social sciences. CAORC member centers foster international scholarly exchange through the sponsorship of fellowship programs, foreign language study and collaborative research projects. CAORC was awarded a three-year grant from the Islam Initiative at the Carnegie Corporation of New York to help increase public knowledge about the diversity of thought, cultures and history of Islam and Muslim communities and to develop a more complex understanding among Americans about Muslim communities throughout the world.
