

American Judaism's Scorecard:

Sports and American Jewish Culture

A public lecture by Jeffrey S. Gurock

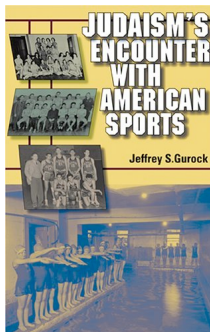

Through the metaphor of Judaism's encounter with American sports, Professor Jeffrey S. Gurock will explore the dynamics of 20th century immigrant adjustment to the United States and assess the contemporary state of Jewish life in this country.

A student panel follows the lecture (Jesse David, C'06, Erica Denhoff, C'08, Lauren Weinstein, C'06) along with a book-signing by the author and food for all!

Contact the Jewish Studies Program for more info.
215-898-6654 or jsp-info@ccat.sas.upenn.edu

The 10th Annual Silvers Visiting Scholar Program at Penn is endowed by Patricia, CW'72, & David Silvers, C'71.

About the Author

Jeffrey S. Gurock, Libby M. Klaperman Professor of Jewish History at Yeshiva University, is author or editor of 13 books, including A Modern Heretic and a Traditional Community: Mordecai M. Kaplan, Orthodoxy and American Judaism, which received the Saul Viener Prize from the American Jewish Historical Society. Gurock has served for the past 25 years as assistant men's basketball coach at Yeshiva and has run the New York City Marathon 12 times. He lives in New York City.

Wednesday
February 22
5:00 pm

Steinhardt Hall

2nd floor auditorium
215 South 39th Street Philadelphia PA 19104