EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The NETS translation of the book of Psalms has been based primarily on the edition of Alfred Rahlfs, Psalmi cum Odis (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Litterarum Gottingensis editum X [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1967 (1931)]). Although Rahlfs is not a full-fledged critical edition of the Greek Psalter, it is the best available and as such an appropriate text with which to begin. The present NETS translation has been revised from its first appearance in a separately published fascicle.1

At not a few places, Rahlfs enclosed within square brackets items of text, which, although they could not in his judgment justifiably be regarded as original, nevertheless have widespread support in the textual traditions. Since in all of these cases I agree with Rahlfs’ conclusion, I have taken the next step and have excluded these items from NETS without comment.

Further improvements to Rahlfs’ edition have been made in the light of additional textual information (chiefly II–V CE; especially the famous P. Bodmer XXIV [Rahlfs 2110]) and more recent study. All these, however, have been included in the footnotes to NETS. Nevertheless, there remains good reason to emphasize that a liturgical text such as the Psalter, with its long and intensive transmission history, can hardly be expected to have been fully restored as yet to its pristine purity. I have therefore followed Rahlfs’ lead and, in addition to changing his text, have placed within square brackets items whose originality I consider to be suspect. These may be eliminated altogether by a future editor more courageous than I or armed with additional evidence.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

General Character

There can be no doubt that the NETS paradigm of the Greek as an interlinear translation of the Hebrew is applicable to the book of Psalms. That is to say, the linguistic relationship of the Greek text to the Hebrew text is one of dependence and subservience. Yet within that model it has its own profile. Its translation is literal, if literalness is understood to refer to a high degree of consistency in one-to-one equivalence, including not only so-called content words but structural words as well. Thus literalness might be labeled its central characteristic.

Literalness may, however, be nuanced in several ways. The number of many-to-one Hebrew-Greek equations is relatively high. That is to say, the translator often selected a single Greek word (or root) for several Hebrew counterparts. This feature, semantic leveling, is fully compatible with the interlinear paradigm and for that reason should not be attributed to the translator’s lack of literary imagination. Included here are words and concepts that seem to have been his default stock-in-trade. Thus, for example, ἀντιληπτωρ (“supporter”) and βοήθος (“helper”) translate seven Hebrew words each, and their cognates further underscore the translator’s predilection for them. Obviously, these readily came to mind when the translator looked for suitable equivalents to the Hebrew. Similarly, Greek words that convey relatedness to the “law” (νόμος) such as “lawlessness” (ἀνομία), “lawless” (ἀνόμος), “to act in a lawless manner” (ἀνόμω), “to transgress the law” (παράνομο,) “transgressor of the law” (παράνομος)—are prominent. Or again a concept like “injustice” (ἀδικία + cognates) receives an emphasis in the Greek disproportionate to the Hebrew. As a result, the reader of NETS will read more about God’s “supporting” and “helping” of humans, and similarly more about the law as a yardstick for “good,” “evil” and “injustice,” than will the reader of NRSV.

Not surprisingly perhaps the number of one-to-many Hebrew-Greek equations is relatively low. In such cases a single Hebrew word or root is translated by at least two or more Greek words. Some exam-that one should make a distinction in meaning between the two Greek words. Interestingly, though it is not difficult to discern something of a semantic shift from Hebrew to Greek, it is not certain "servant/slave" (Hebrew "to answer") is translated by "slave" (Greek "παιδί") but on a few occasions by "child/servant/slave" (παισίς). As might be expected, such differentiation of meaning happens with greater frequency on the verbal (more abstract) side of the language than on the nominal (more concrete) side. Hebrew "to turn" (תבשׁ), for instance, is rendered by twelve different Greek verbs. Nonetheless, though a measure of differentiation occurs, it is typically rather restricted. Thus, in the example just cited, ἐπι- and ὀποστρέφω account for nearly two-thirds of all instances. Again, this phenomenon of limited and restricted differentiation or an overemphasis on word-centered meaning may be said to be at home in an interlinear linguistic environment.

The above does not preclude that leveling, and especially differentiation, cannot at times serve purely stylistic purposes, but given the general nature of the Greek translation of Psalms, leveling and differentiation are usually the better explanation.

An interesting example, which could be differentiation for purely stylistic reasons, is the equation of Hebrew "to answer" (אָ֣דֵן) with Greek "to listen to" (ἐπισκούω or εἰσοκούω), when God is the subject. Though it is not difficult to discern something of a semantic shift from Hebrew to Greek, it is not certain that one should make a distinction in meaning between the two Greek words. Interestingly, εἰσοκούω also translates Hebrew "to hear" (יָשַׁה), though ἐπισκούω does not. Thus, in part at least, here too a difference in the Greek echoes a difference in the Hebrew, and to that extent it is still expressive of literalness. For NETS I have opted for the synonyms "to listen" (εἰσοκούω) and "to hearken" (ἐπισκούω) respectively.

Other aspects of literalness—or better isomorphism—at both the lexical and grammatical levels add further flavor to the Greek of Psalms. As noted, expressive of the interlinear model, our translator had a strong tendency to overemphasize the importance of individual words and formal details of the Hebrew, at the expense of communicating its coherent meaning. For example, in a number of passages he mechanically transferred the Hebrew gender of a pronominal, thereby presenting an exegetical challenge to anyone reading the text independent of the Hebrew: 26.3–4; 73.18; 80.6; 108.27; 117.23; 118.50, 56: 131.6. (I have flagged such instances in the notes.) Indeed, the Greek translator’s starting point was at times almost directly opposite to that advocated by modern semanticists. Not infrequently, he began with the individual word and its supposed core meaning rather than with meaning as it is conveyed by the interrelationship of words in syntactic units. Differently put, one could say that he tends to maximize the individual word and to minimize the context in which it stands, rather than vice-versa.

Though at times the translator might be charged with throwing at his reader the Hebrew text in Greek guise, to call him a hack would be unfair. Instead, as has been suggested, his translating is heavily circumscribed by linguistic interlinearity, which informs his task. Indeed, from that perspective it clearly makes little sense to charge him with inadequate knowledge of Greek and lack of stylistic sensitivity. Even in the superscripts where no context comes to his assistance, he at times introduces an interpretive spin. One may note, for example, that although 91.1 we have decidedly unidiomatic Greek. NRSV translates idiomatically "draw the spear" and the Greek translator might have done likewise but did not.

To be sure, a modern translator, in the nature of the case, tends to overemphasize what is problematic about the work of an ancient translator and underemphasize what causes no problems. In spite of the translation model he used, most of what the Greek translator of Psalms did is intelligible—and that includes many passages in which the Hebrew text is less than clear—if not idiomatic. He will even at times introduce difference—where the Hebrew text is identical—perhaps for the sake of variation in style, though that is not the only available explanation. An instructive example is Ps 59.7–14 in comparison with Ps 107.7–14.

Indeed, one can even find some literary sparks, the exceptions that prove the rule of his regular mode. So at 48(49).3 where the Hebrew text speaks of “(sons of) man” (נָבִים נְבִיִּים) and “(sons of) men” (נָבִים נְבִיִּים), the translator, rather than resorting to his standard equivalents, decided to render the first phrase by “earthborn” (γηγενές) (a word virtually unknown in the Septuagint) and neatly balanced the pair by a “both . . . and” conjunctive. In 10(11).2 the phrase “to shoot in the dark (πόθος) at the upright in heart” becomes “to shoot in a moonless night (σκοτομήν) at the upright in heart,” thus employing a picturesque word rare in Greek and unattested elsewhere in the Septuagint corpus. Or again, in 26(27).9 Hebrew “to forsake” (לָשׁוֹא), elsewhere rendered simply as “to reject” (ἀποκτάω), is translated by the rare and graphic verb “to throw to the crows” (ἀποσκοράκιζω), glossed in NETS by “to damn.” Ps 109.3 features “morning-star” (εὐφορός) for Hebrew “morning” (הָרֶשֶׁת) rather than the less colorful “morning” (ἀργός) he uses elsewhere. Such literary nuggets are admittedly not many, and one would scarcely expect them in a text whose evident purpose it is to point the reader away from itself, but they do exist, and they do add a dimension to our translator’s work. Yet, when all is said and done, it is the Psalter’s liter- alness or isomorphism that establishes a baseline for translator and exegete alike.

Of Stereotypes, Calques and Isolates

The vast majority of words in the Psalms have standard Greek meanings, and that includes the so-called stereotypes, which, due to rigid equation with a single Hebrew counterpart, sometimes fit poorly into their context. Among these may be counted πικραίνω (“to embitter”) + cognates, θέλω (“to want”) + cognates, εἰς τάλας (“completely”), στήρα (“fat” in a context where “prosperity” is needed), νεφρός (“kidney” in reference to the seat of the emotions), ψαλμός (“psalm”), εἰρήνη (“peace” in reference to a person’s well-being).

Calques (Greek words with Hebrew meaning, institutionalized prior to the translation) can be found as well in Psalms as well. The clearest example is διαθήκη, a word that probably began its life in Jewish usage as a stereotype but that in the Psalter is clearly a calque and therefore appropriately translated by “covenant” (the stock meaning of Hebrew נבfriends, rather than the “testament” of extra-biblical Greek). It is also possible that νόμος (“law”) carries the added sense of “teaching,” derived from נבfriends, its standard Hebrew counterpart but more likely represents a semantic shift of נבfriends by the third century BCE.

The Greek translator’s overemphasis on individual words and his preoccupation with the lower levels of constituent structure are most clearly noticeable in his isolate renderings. Typically, in such cases, etymology of the Hebrew word plays a central role. By way of illustration, in Ps 7.7 Hebrew נבfriends (“overflow/arrogance/fury”) is translated via נבfriends = πῖπον (“across”) by πῖπος (“end”)—a word representing entirely different Hebrew lexemes elsewhere in Psalms—and the Greek line as a whole must mean something like: “be exalted at the deaths of my enemies.” A glance at Ps 38.5 confirms that πῖπος within the Psalter can indeed refer to the terminus of human life. Or does the line mean what Thomson thought it did: “Exalt Thyself in the borders of mine enemies”? Whatever the case, as a result of the translator’s adherence to interlinearity his text, on the one hand, means something quite different from MT and, on the other, is scarcely intelligible in Greek.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF PSALMS

General Approach

But if the Greek translator’s approach to his Hebrew text was all too often indeed what I have alleged it to be, namely, an isomorphic approach with a primary focus on representing the source text, not infrequently at the expense of coherent sense, what are the options of a NETS translator to render this “interlinear” Greek into English? Clearly as long as words are fully concordant with their context and the grammar is at least transparent, NETS can be expected to read relatively smoothly.

Though I have eschewed any rigid policy of one-to-one Greek-English equation, a reasonable effort has been made to reproduce word echoes in the Greek, which may or may not reflect echoes in the Hebrew. In passing it deserves to be mentioned that this effort has not infrequently meant that the reading of the NRSV has been replaced by a synonym in NETS.

By “reasonable effort” it should be understood that the more circumscribed a word’s meaning the better it lends itself to representation by a single English equivalent. Not surprisingly, therefore, there are many Greek terms, especially on the nominal (more concrete) side of the language, that have been given a single (or at least a default) English equivalent. Thus a word such as ὄρος ("mountain") has been rendered throughout by "mountain," even when NRSV, for literary reasons, had opted for "hill" to translate the identical Hebrew word (≡). Similarly, ἄρτος ἔρυμά ( + cognates), the standard equivalent for both מִשְׁכָּב and נַבּוֹן, has been uniformly rendered "sinner." Countless others have been treated in the same way.

When I have judged that the Greek translator differentiates vis-à-vis the Hebrew for semantic reasons, I have typically differentiated in NETS.

The highest level of one-to-one Greek-English consistency in Psalms will be observable within individual psalms.

Perhaps the lowest level of one-to-one consistency has been feasible with respect to relational words, notably prepositions, including phrases that function as prepositions. The obvious reason for this is that such words play a primarily structural role and as such carry little fixed meaning. (See further below.)

I have already touched on the problem of idiomatic and figurative language. Although in a replacement type of translation idioms and figurative expressions in the source language are typically lost in the process, others are often gained from the target language, thus producing a kind of equilibrium of loss and gain. In Septuagint translationese, however, one would hardly expect that to be the case, and especially in a poetic book such as Psalms we see a decidedly unilateral process. In fact, because of its highly literal approach, what is figurative in Hebrew frequently becomes an oddity in Greek. For example, although Hebrew מִבֵּית ("kidney") often figuratively refers to human emotions, νεφρός in Greek means only "kidney." Therefore any figurative sense is imposed by the (translated) context. Because NETS has opted for a representative translation style, what is unidiomatic and nonfigurative in the Greek will often be the same in English.

Selected Words and Phrases

The so-called superscriptions or titles to individual psalms cause a disproportionate grief to a translator, modern and ancient alike. The reason for this, in addition to frequent lexical obscurity, is that the words and expressions used are typically without context. Since there is reason to believe that the superscriptions grew in a piecemeal, atomistic fashion, I have treated them in NETS in an atomistic fashion even beyond the NRSV. The reader who is troubled by this may simply ignore the punctuation between discrete items and string them together.

The Greek translator’s word-based approach is as evident in the superscriptions as everywhere else. Yet within those parameters there is some evidence of differentiation, some of which has already been noted. Thus, for example, one encounters both nominatives and genitives without explicit warrant in the Hebrew, and datives as well. All in all, whether as a result of differentiation or one-to-one equation with the Hebrew, there is a variety of words/phrases that may be labeled “expressions of general reference.” That is to say, they indicate without much specificity how a word of uncertain meaning, has been interpreted to mean not simply an interlude but an interlude on strings and rendered accordingly in NETS. Evidently in recognition of the fact that it indicated a pause in the musical proceedings, the Greek translator did not represent “Selah” when it stood at the close of a psalm (3.9; 23.10; 45.12).

Another frequent item in the titles is ωδή, the regular translation of מָ/do ("song"). Though “song” would have been defensible for NETS, I have opted, with some hesitation, for “Ode” instead. To be sure, ωδή is the standard equivalent of מָ/do (36x) and may be a calque, since it already occurs in the Greek Pentateuch as an equivalent for מָ/do; on five occasions within Psalms (32.3; 39.4; 95.1; 97.1; 149.1) the translator opted for ḥêmа ("song"). This may suggest that he meant to differentiate the two. The presence of κατάνω ("new") with all five instances of ḥêmа may further indicate that an ḥôm was thought of as being more of a traditional song in distinction from a new and ad hoc composition. But the latter point can clearly not be pressed in light of ḥôm κατάνω ("new ode") in 143.9. Consequently, whatever the precise difference in the Greek, I have sought to mirror a difference in NETS by translating the terms as "Ode" and "song" respectively.

Since the Greek Psalter provides no evidence that the translator made any serious attempt at distinguishing between the divine names הוהי ("Yahweh," including the short form "Yah") and交通安全("Adonai"), I have in accordance with NETS policy rendered all occurrences of כּוּרי, when representing either, by "Lord."

Hades, one of very few translations into Greek, which has not been translated into English, is probably a calque. If that is correct, to translate it simply by English "hell" would seem to be as inappropriate as rendering its Hebrew counterpart, Sheol, by that term.

There is reason to believe that the translator’s chief reason for using σκήνωμα, and by extension κατασκήνω, is to reserve σκήνη for the Tabernacle, in line with Pentateuchal usage. Consequently, it appears unlikely that σκήνωμα + is meant to carry any special nuance, apart from its general sense of non-permanence. In Psalms (and elsewhere in NETS), therefore, the noun has been rendered by "covert," and the verb by "encamp," in distinction from "tent" for σκήνη.

Greek δοῦλος in Psalms has been rendered, with some hesitation, by "slave." The hesitation stems purely from the connotation "slave" carries in modern English. The Greek Pentateuch translated Hebrew עבד ("servant"/"slave") almost exclusively by Greek παῖς, a word with a very similar semantic range. Leuitikon 25.44 and 26.13, where δοῦλος is found instead, confirm the difference between the two Greek terms. The translator of Psalms chose almost exclusively δοῦλος ("slave") (53x) with only four occurrences of παῖς. Esaias and Jeremias present a mix with Iezekiel inclining toward δοῦλος and the Minor Prophets completely in the latter camp. There is no evidence for arguing that δοῦλος in Psalms is a calque.

Since όναβαθμός has no prior history within the LXX in the sense of "ascents," it can scarcely be called a calque (if indeed its Hebrew counterpart has that meaning?). Since both inside and outside the LXX, the word is used only in the sense of steps (of a stairway), it evidently carries its normal semantic range. What we seem to have, therefore, is a stereotype, which arose because the translator insisted on the equation όναβαθμός – όναβαθμός = όναβαθμός – όναβαθμός. Why he did not choose όναβαθμός instead—which occurs in 83.6, but for a different Hebrew root—may be surprising but suggests in any case that he was not thinking of "ascending/ascension" as such. Accordingly, NETS readers will read of Songs of the Steps rather than Songs of Ascents. Of interest is that according to Jewish exegetical tradition these psalms were thought of as being more of a traditional song in distinction from a new and ad hoc composition. But the latter point can clearly not be pressed in light of ḥôm κατάνω ("new ode") in 143.9. Consequently, whatever the precise difference in the Greek, I have sought to mirror a difference in NETS by translating the terms as "Ode" and "song" respectively.

Some Problems of Grammar

Since the Psalms are poetic literature and furthermore typically do not tell a story with a timeline of its own, the Hebrew verbal categories of tense-aspect presented something of a problem to the Greek translator. Quite clearly he ended up by working with a set of default or unmarked equations. Thus Hebrew yiqtol forms are normally translated by the Greek future indicative, the qatal by the aorist indicative, and the participle often by the present indicative. It should be noted, however, that participles are also often translated by participles, even though that may produce either strained syntax in the Greek or an obvious change in syntax.

Though he had his default equivalents, apparent awareness of contextual sense brought about some flexibility. Nevertheless, the defaults produced a certain stiltedness and abruptness in the use and sequence of Greek tenses. In an effort to communicate at least some of this quality to the reader of NETS, I have typically rendered all Greek aorists by the English simple past, even when the NRSV has used the present perfect—which is not to say that the Greek aorist and the English simple past are linguistically identical.

A second grammatical item that occasioned some discomfort is the preposition. The primary function of prepositions is grammatical; that is to say, prepositions forge relationships between constituents of sentences. Nonetheless, like full words or lexemes but unlike lexically empty structural markers such as case endings, prepositions have some lexical content. They may appropriately be referred to as (semantically) bleached words or lexemes in distinction from (semantically) full words or lexemes. Once this is realized, it comes as no surprise when prepositions are treated as though they were full lexemes with a set meaning, idiomatic usage tends to go out the window (cf. the earlier note on idiomatic language). Yet this is precisely what often happens in the Greek Psalms due to the fact that its translator often read the Hebrew text in an atomistic manner. The result is that each Hebrew preposition was typically given a default equivalent in Greek, and this default tended to be used irrespective of whether it produced idiomatic Greek. Since the issue here is frequently one of infelicity in Greek style (which is difficult to mimic in English) rather than change in meaning from the Hebrew, such instances have been largely ignored for the purposes of NETS, lest one produce senseless English! The rule of thumb has been to ignore all instances of default equations between Hebrew and Greek but to take seriously instances of non-default equations, the assumption being that when the translator deviated from his routine he did so for a reason.

Greek καί ("and"), the standard equivalent of Hebrewׁ ("and"), has been rendered routinely by "and," even where the NRSV suppresses Hebrewׁ. Since Greek Psalms often lacks articles when they are not explicitly warranted by the source text, such absence has been taken seriously in NETS.

EDITORIAL DETAIL
Punctuation in Rahlfs' edition of the Greek Psalter has been treated with respect but not regarded as normative.

Unlike "Selah" in the NRSV, its equivalent in NETS, "interlude on strings," is consistently followed by an empty line on the grounds that any interlude signals a pause.

In their division of materials the Masoretic and the Greek Psalters do not completely agree. Since MT Psalms 9 and 10 are a single psalm in the Greek (9) and Greek Psalm 113 is two psalms in MT (114, 115), between these points the numeration of LXX is up by one from MT. Further, since LXX Psalms 114 and 115 equal MT 116.1–9 and 116.10–19 respectively, and MT 147.1–II and 12–20 constitute LXX 146 and 147, between these points we have an identical number of Psalms, though their enumeration varies by one.

Versification in MT, LXX and NRSV is potentially more confusing. While MT and LXX coincide, the NRSV excludes the psalm titles from the numbering and as a result is out of step with both MT and LXX. NETS follows the Rahlfs numbering for chapters and verses but gives the NRSV numbers in parentheses.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE
Apart from standard grammars and lexica, I have benefited from other English translations of the Greek Psalter such as those of Brenton (1844) and Thomson (1808) (see "TO THE READER OF NETS"), but particularly from the more recent renditions by A. Lazarus, The Holy Psalter from the Septuagint (Madras: Diocesan Press, 1966), by the Fathers of the Holy Transfiguration Monastery, The Psalter according to the Seventy (Boston, 1987), and by José M. de Vinck and Leonidas C. Contos, The Psalms Translated from the Greek Septuagint (Allendale NJ: Alleluia Press, 1993). A copy of The Psalter acc. to the Seventy was kindly sent to me by Father Basil. It should be borne in mind, however, that the aim of NETS has been distinctly different from any of these. Among the more exegetical treatments, Martin Flashar’s “Exegetische Studien zum Septuagintpsalter” (ZAW 32 [1912] 81–116, 161–198, 241–268) has been invaluable, as has been F. W. Mozley, The Psalter of the Church (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1905).

My graduate students in Septuagint at the University of Toronto, Cameron Boyd-Taylor, Paul McLean, Tony Michael, Marc Saunders, Tyler Williams, Jannes Smith and Wade White have been of great help. A special debt of gratitude I owe, however, to Cameron for his incisive and persistent critique, which has immeasurably improved the final product.

Psalm 1

1 Happy the man who did not walk by the counsel of the impious,
and in the way of sinners did not stand,
and on the seat of pestiferous people did

10 Do let evil of sinners be brought to an end, and you shall direct the righteous.

11 Righteous is my help from God, he who saves the upright in heart.

12 God is a righteous judge, [and strong and patient], one who does not bring on wrath every day.

13 If you do not turn back, he will make his sword gleam; his bow he bent and prepared it,

14 and on it he prepared implements of death; he forged his arrows for those that are being burnt.

15 Look, he was in travail with injustice; he conceived toil and brought forth lawlessness.

16 A pit he dug and cleaned it out, and he shall fall into the hole he made.

17 His toil shall return upon his own head, and on his own pate his injustice shall descend.

18 I will give to the Lord the acknowledgment due to his righteousness and make music to the name of the Lord, the Most High.

Psalm 8

1 Regarding completion. Over the wine vats. A Psalm. Pertaining to David.

2 O Lord, our Lord, how admirable is your name in all the earth, because your magnificence was raised beyond the heavens.

3 Out of mouths of infants and nurslings you furnished praise for yourself, for the sake of your enemies, to put down enemy and avenger,

4 because I will observe the heavens, works of your fingers—moon and stars—things you alone founded.

5 What is man that you are mindful of him or son of man that you attend to him?

6 You diminished him a little in comparison with angels; with glory and honor you crowned him.

7 And you set him over the works of your hands; you subjected all under his feet,

8 sheep and cattle, all together, and further the beasts of the plain,

9 the birds of the air and the fish of the sea—the things that pass through paths of seas.

10 O Lord, our Lord, how admirable is your name in all the earth!

Psalm 9(–10)

1 Regarding completion. Over the secrets of the son. A Psalm. Pertaining to David.

2 I will acknowledge you, O Lord, with my whole heart; I will tell of all your wonderful deeds.

3 I will be glad and will rejoice in you; I will make music to your name, O Most High.

4 When my enemy turns back, rearwards, they shall grow weak and shall perish from before you,

5 because you maintained my right and my cause;
you sat on a throne, you who judge with righteousness.

6(5) You rebuked nations, and the impious perished; their name you blotted out forever and forever and ever.

7(6) The swords of the enemy failed completely, and cities you destroyed; the memory of them perished resoundingly.

8(7) And the Lord remains forever; he prepared his throne in judgment. And it is he who will judge the world with righteousness; he will judge peoples with uprightness.

9(8) And the Lord became a refuge for the needy, a helper at opportune times in affliction.

10(9) And the Lord became a refuge for the needy, a helper at opportune times in affliction. And let those who know your name hope in you, because you did not forsake those who seek you, O Lord.

11(10) Make music to the Lord, who resides in Sion. Declare his practices among the nations, because while avenging blood he was mindful of them; he did not forget the cry of the needy.

12(11) Have mercy on me, O Lord. See my humiliation from my enemies; you are the one who lifts me up from the gates of death.

13(12) Let sinners be turned away to Hades, all the nations that keep forgetting God.

14(13) Because the poor shall not be completely forgotten, the endurance of the needy shall not perish forever.

15(14) Set a lawgiver over them, O Lord; let nations know that they are human beings.

16(15) Nations got stuck in the corruption they produced; in this trap, which they hid, their own foot was caught.

17(16) For he said in his heart, “I shall not be shaken, from generation to generation without adversity”—him whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness and deceit; under his tongue are grief and hardship.

18(17) Let sinners be turned away to Hades, all the nations that keep forgetting God.

19(18) For he said in his heart, “God has forgotten; he turned away his face so as not to see it at all.”

20(19) Rise up, O Lord! Do not let man prevail; let nations be judged before you.

21(20) Nations got stuck in the corruption they produced; in this trap, which they hid, their own foot was caught.

22(1) Why, O Lord, do you stand far off—do you overlook at opportune times in affliction?

23(2) When the impious behaves arrogantly, the poor is set on fire; they are being caught in the schemes they devise.

24(3) because the sinner commends himself for the lusts of his soul, and he who acts unjustly counts himself blessed.

25(4) The sinner provoked the Lord, “According to the full extent of his wrath he will not seek out.” God is not before him.

26(5) His ways are being defiled at every opportunity; your judgments are being erased from before him; over all his enemies he will exercise dominion.

27(6) For he said in his heart, “I shall not be shaken, from generation to generation without adversity”—him whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness and deceit; under his tongue are grief and hardship.

28(7) He sits in ambush with the rich, in secret places to kill the innocent. His eyes focus on the needy; he lurks in secret like a lion in its covert; he lurks that he may seize the poor, that he may seize a poor one by dragging him off.

29(8) For he said in his heart, “God has forgotten; he turned away his face so as not to see it at all.”

30(9) Rise up, O Lord God; let your hand be lifted up; do not forget the needy.

31(10) In his trap he will humble him; he shall stoop and fall when he exercises dominion over the needy.

32(11) For he said in his heart, “God has forgotten; he turned away his face so as not to see it at all.”

33(12) Rise up, O Lord God; let your hand be lifted up; do not forget the needy.

34(13) Why did the impious provoke God? For he said in his heart, “He will not seek out!”

35(14) You see, because you note hardship and anger, to hand them over into your hands; the poor has abandoned himself to you; you were one helping the orphan.

a Or justice b Possibly Vocal (in distinction from instrumental) interlude Crush the arm of the sinner and evildoer; his sin shall be sought out, and he shall no more be found on account of it.

The Lord is king forever and forever and ever; you shall perish, O nations, from his land.

O Lord you listened to the desire of the needy; your ear inclined to the readiness of their heart, to do justice for the orphan and the humble so that man on the earth may not add to brag.

In the Lord I trust; how will you say to my soul, "Flee to the mountains like a sparrow"— because, look, sinners bent a bow; they prepared arrows for the quiver, to shoot in a moonless night at the upright in heart, because what you fashioned they took down. But the righteous—what did he do?

The Lord is in his holy shrine; the Lord's throne is in heaven. His eyes focus on the needy; his eyelids examine the sons of men.

The Lord examines the righteous and the impious, but he who loves injustice hates his own soul.

On sinners he will rain down snares; fire and sulfur and a wind of a tempest are the portion of their cup.

Because the Lord is righteous and he loved righteous deeds, his face beheld uprightness.

How long, O Lord, will you totally forget me? How long will you turn your face from me?

Until when shall I hold counsels in my soul, have pains in my heart by day? How long shall my enemy be exalted over me?

Regard; listen to me, O Lord my God! Give light to my eyes, lest I sleep unto death, lest my enemy say, "I prevailed against him"; they who afflict me will rejoice if I am shaken.

But I hoped in your mercy; my heart shall rejoice in your deliverance.

I will sing to the Lord, my benefactor, and make music to the name of the Lord, the Most High.

The fool said in his heart, "There is no God." They caused corruption and were abominable in their practices; there is no one practicing kindness; there is not even one.

The Lord peered down from the sky on the sons of men.
Psalm 14(15)

1 A Psalm. Pertaining to David.

(1) O Lord, who shall sojourn in your covert? And who shall encamp on your holy mountain?

2 One who walks spotless and practices righteousness, who speaks truth in his heart;

3 he who did not beguile with his tongue nor did evil to his fellow and did not take up reproach against his next of kin.

4 Before him one who acts wickedly is despised, but those who fear the Lord he glorifies; he who swears to his fellow and does not renege.

5 His money he did not give at interest, and gifts he did not take against the innocent.

He who does these things shall never be shaken.

Psalm 15(16)

1 A stele inscription. Pertaining to David.

(1) Guard me, O Lord, because in you I hoped. I said to the Lord, "My Lord you are, because you have no need of my goods."

3 As for the holy ones who are in his land—he made marvelous all his wants among them.

4 Their infirmities were multiplied; after that, they were quick; I will not gather their gatherings due to spilled blood or make mention of their names with my lips.

5 The Lord is the portion of my inheritance and of my cup; you are the one who restores to me my inheritance.

6 Boundary lines dropped for me in the most excellent spots—indeed, to me my inheritance is most excellent.

7 I will bless the Lord who makes me understand; moreover, until night my kidneys instructed me.

8 I kept seeing the Lord always before me, because he is at my right, that I might not be shaken.

9 Therefore my heart was glad, and my tongue rejoiced; moreover, my flesh will encamp in hope, because you will not abandon my soul to Hades or give your devout to see corruption.

10 You made known to me ways of life. You will fill me with gladness along with your face; in your right hand are delights, completely.

Psalm 16(17)

1 A Prayer. Pertaining to David.

(1) Listen, O Lord, to my righteousness; attend to my petition; give ear to my prayer on lips not deceitful.

2 From before you may my judgment come forth; let my eyes see acts of straightforwardness.

3 You tried my heart; you visited by night; you grilled me, and no injustice was found in me.

4 That my mouth might not (4)speak of the deeds of human beings, on account of the words from your lips, I kept to difficult ways.

5 Restore my steps in your paths, lest my steps be shaken.

I, I cried out, because you hearkened to me, O God; incline your ear to me, and listen to my words. Wondrously show your mercies, you who save those that hope in you from those that withstand your right hand. Guard me as the eye's pupil; with your wings' shelter you will shelter me from before the impious that distress me. My enemies beset my soul; their fat they shut up; their mouth spoke arrogance. Casting me out, they then encircled me; their eyes they set to incline at the ground. They seized me like a lion eager for prey and like a whelp living in hiding. Rise up, O Lord; anticipate them, and trip them up; rescue my soul from the impious, your sword from the enemies of your hand. O Lord, from few things from earth separate them in their lives. And with your hidden things their belly was filled; they were fed with sons, and they left the remnants to their infants. But as for me, I shall appear to your face in righteousness; I shall be fed when your glory appears. I will love you, O Lord, my strength. The Lord is my firmness and my refuge and my rescuer; my God is my helper, and I will hope in him, my protector and horn of my deliverance, my supporter. When I praise, I will call upon the Lord, and from my enemies I shall be saved. Pangs of death encompassed me, and wadis of lawlessness alarmed me; pangs of Hades encircled me; snares of death outran me.

7(6) And when I was being afflicted, I called upon the Lord, and to my God I cried. From his holy shrine he heard my voice, and my cry before him will enter into his ears. 8(7) And the earth shook and was atremble, and the foundations of the mountains were disturbed and shook, because God was angry with them. 9(8) Smoke went up in his wrath, and fire flamed from before him; coals were ignited by him. 10(9) And he sloped heaven and came down, and thick darkness was under his feet. 11(10) And he mounted upon cheroubin and flew; he flew upon the wings of winds. 12(11) And he made darkness his hideaway; around him was his tent, dark water in clouds of air. 13(12) From the brightness before him the clouds passed, hail and coals of fire. 14(13) And the Lord thundered from heaven, and the Most High gave forth his voice. 15(14) And he sent out arrows and scattered them; and lightnings he multiplied and confounded them. 16(15) And the springs of the waters appeared, and the foundations of the world were uncovered at your rebuke, O Lord, at the blast of the breath of your wrath. 17(16) He sent out from on high, and he took me; he took me to himself out of many waters. 18(17) He will rescue me from my powerful enemies and from those that hate me, because they were too stout for me. 19(18) They outran me in the day of my ill-treatment, and the Lord became my buttress. 20(19) And he brought me out into spaciousness; he will rescue me, because he wanted me. 21(20) And the Lord will reward me according to my righteousness, and according to the cleanness of my hands he will give back to me, 22(21) because I kept the ways of the Lord and did not impiously depart from my God, 23(22) because all his judgments were before me and his statutes I did not put away from me.

31(30) My God—blameless is his way, the sayings of the Lord, tried by fire; he is a protector of all who hope in him, 32(31) because, who is god except the Lord? And who is god besides our God?

33(32) God who girded me with power, and he made my way blameless,

34(33) refitting my feet like a deer's and setting me on the heights,

35(34) training my hands for battle, and my arms you made a bronze bow.

36(35) And you gave me protection for my deliverance, and your right hand supported me, and your instruction set me straight completely.

37(36) You made spacious my strides under me, and my footsteps did not weaken.

38(37) I will pursue my enemies and overtake them, and I will not turn away until they fail.

39(38) I will much afflict them, and they will not be able to stand; they shall fall under my feet.

40(39) And you girded me with power for battle; you shackled under me those who rise up against me.

41(40) And as for my enemies—you gave me their back, and those who hated me you destroyed.

42(41) They cried out, and there was no one to save, to the Lord, and he did not listen to them.

43(42) And I will pulverize them like dust before the wind; like the mire of streets I will grind them down.

44(43) You will rescue me from disputes with people;

you will appoint me as head of nations; a people whom I did not know was subject to me.

45(44) At the ear's hearing, it obeyed me. Sons of strangers lied to me.

46(45) Sons of strangers grew old and limped from their paths.

47(46) The Lord lives! And blessed be my God, and let the God of my deliverance be exalted,

48(47) the God who gives me vengeance and subdues peoples under me,

49(48) my rescuer from my irascible enemies; from those who rise up against me you will lift me up; you will rescue me from an unjust man.

50(49) Therefore I will acknowledge you among nations, O Lord, and make music to your name,

5(4) In you our fathers hoped;
they hoped, and you rescued them.
6(5) To you they cried and were saved;
in you they hoped and were not put to shame.

7(6) But as for me, I am a worm and not human,
a reproach of mankind and despised by people.
8(7) All who saw me mocked at me;
they talked with the lips; they moved the head:
9(8) “He hoped in the Lord; let him rescue him;
let him save him, because he wanted him,” 10(9) because it was you who drew me from the belly, my hope from my mother’s breasts.

and my tongue is stuck to my throat,
and to death’s dust you brought me down, 17(16) because many dogs encircled me,
a gathering of evildoers surrounded me.
They gouged my hands and feet;
18(17) I counted all my bones,
but they took note and observed me;
19(18) they divided my clothes among themselves, and for my clothing they cast lots.
20(19) But you, O Lord, do not put my help far away!
Attend to my support!
21(20) Rescue my soul from the sword,
and from a dog’s claw my only life!
22(21) Save me from a lion’s mouth, and my lowliness from the horns of unicorns!

23(22) I will tell of your name to my kindred;
in the midst of an assembly I will sing a hymn to you:
24(23) You who fear the Lord, praise him!
All you offspring of Jacob together glorify him;
let all the offspring of Israel fear him, 25(24) because he did not despise or scorn the petition of the poor, nor did he turn away his face from me,
and when I cried to him, he listened to me.
26(25) From you comes my commendation in a great assembly;
my vows I will pay before those who fear him.
27(26) The needy shall eat and be satisfied, and those who seek him shall praise the Lord;
their hearts shall live forever and ever!
28(27) All the ends of the earth shall remember

Psalm 25(26)

1 aPertaining to a Dauid.

1 Vindicateb me, O Lord, because I walked in my guilelessness, and since I hope in the Lord, I shall not grow weak.

2 Prove me, O Lord, and try me; test my kidneys and my heart.

3 Because your mercy is before my eyes, and I was pleased in your truth.

4 I did not sit with a council of vanity, and with transgressors of the law I will not enter;

5 I hated the assembly of evildoers, and with the impious I will not sit.

6 I will wash my hands in innocence and go around your altar, O Lord,

7 to hear a voice of praise and tell all your wondrous deeds.

8 O Lord, I loved your house’s majesty and the spot of your glory’s covert.

9 Do not destroy my soul together with the impious and my life with men of blood, in whose hands are acts of lawlessness; their right hand was filled with gifts.

10 But as for me, I walked in my guilelessness; redeem me, and have mercy on me.

11 My foot stood in uprightness; in assemblies I will bless you, O Lord.

Psalm 26(27)

1 aPertaining to a Dauid. d[Before he was anointed.] d

1 The Lord is my illumination and my savior; whom shall I fear? The Lord is my life’s protector; of whom shall I be in dread?

2 When wicked people would approach me to devour my flesh—those that afflict me and my enemies—they became weak and fell.

3 Though a camp be arrayed against me, my heart shall not fear; though war rise up against me, in this I hope.

4 One I requested of the Lord, this will I seek!} to live in the Lord’s house all the days of my life, to behold the pleasantness of the Lord and to visit his shrine,

5 because he hid me in a tent in the day of troubles, he sheltered me in a secret spot of his tent; high on a rock he set me.

6 And now, look, he set my head high against my enemies; I made the rounds and sacrificed in his tent a sacrifice with shouting; I will sing and make music to the Lord.

7 Listen, O Lord, to my voice with which I cried aloud; have mercy on me, and listen to me!

8 To you my heart said, “My face sought!” Your face, Lord, will I seek.

9 Do not turn your face from me.

Do not turn away from your slave in wrath; be my helper. Do not damn me, and do not abandon me, O God, my savior,

10 because my father and my mother abandoned me, but the Lord took me to himself.

11 Make laws for me by your way, O Lord, and guide me on a straight path for the sake of my enemies.

12 Do not give me up to the souls of people that afflict me, because unjust witnesses rose against me and injustice lied to itself.

13 I believe, in order that I may see the good things of the Lord in the land of the living.

14 Wait for the Lord; take courage, and let your heart be strong, and wait for the Lord!

Psalm 27(28)

1 aPertaining to a Dauid.

1 To you, O Lord, I cried; my God, do not pass me by in silence, lest you pass me by in silence and I shall be like those who go down into a pit.

2 Listen to the voice of my petition, as I petition you, as I lift up my hands toward your holy shrine.
Psalm 27(28)–29(30)

3 Do not drag my soul away together with sinners; together with workers of injustice do not destroy me, those who speak peace with their fellows, but wrongs are in their hearts.

4 Give them according to their works, and according to the wickedness of their practices; according to the works of their hands give them; render them their due reward.

5 Because they took no notice of the works of the Lord and of the works of his hands, you will bring them down and build them up no more.

6 Blessed be the Lord, because he listened to the voice of my petition.

7 The Lord is my helper and my protector; in him my heart hoped, and I was helped and my flesh revived, and from my will I shall acknowledge him.

8 The Lord is empowerment for his people; and he is a protector of the deliverance of his anointed one.

9 O save your people, and bless your heritage, and shepherd them, and lift them up forever.

Psalm 28(29)

1 A Psalm. Pertaining to Dauid.

Bring to the Lord, O divine sons, bring to the Lord glory and honor.

2 Bring to the Lord glory for his name; do obeisance to the Lord in his holy court.

3 The Lord's voice is over the waters; the God of glory thundered, the Lord, over many waters,

4 The Lord's voice in strength, the Lord's voice in magnificence.

5 The Lord's voice, as he crushes cedars, and the Lord will crush the cedars of Lebanon.

6 And he will pulverize them, as the bull calf, the Lebanon, and he that is beloved is like a son of unicorns.

7 The Lord's voice, as he divides flames of fire.

8 The Lord's voice, as he shakes a wilderness;

Psalm 29(30)

1 aPsalm. Of an Oded of the dedication of the house. Pertaining to Dauid.

2(1) I will exalt you, O Lord, because you upheld me and did not gladden my enemies over me.

3(2) O Lord my God, I cried to you, and you healed me.

4(3) O Lord, you brought up my soul from Hades; you saved me from those that go down into a pit.

5(4) Make music to the Lord, O you his devout, and acknowledge the mentioning of his holiness,

6(5) because wrath is in his fury and life in his will. Weeping will lodge for the evening, and rejoicing comes with the morning.

7(6) But as for me, I said in my prosperity, “I shall never be shaken.”

8(7) O Lord, by your will, you furnished my beauty with power, but you turned away your face, and I became troubled.

9(8) To you, O Lord, I will cry, and to my God I will petition:

10(9) “What profit is there in my blood, when I go down to corruption? Surely dust will not acknowledge you or tell of your truth?”

11(10) The Lord heard and had mercy on me; the Lord became my helper.

12(11) You turned my mourning into a dance for me; you tore my sackcloth and girded me with gladness

13(12) so that my glory may make music to you and I shall not be stunned.

1 Regarding completion. A Psalm. Pertaining to Dauid.

2(1) In you, O Lord, I hoped; may I never be put to shame; in your righteousness rescue me, and deliver me.

3(2) Incline your ear to me; be quick to deliver me. Become to me a protector-god and a house of refuge, to save me,

4(3) because you are my empowerment and my refuge, and for your name’s sake you will guide me and nourish me;

5(4) you will bring me out of this snare, which they hid for me, because you are my protector.

6(5) Into your hands I will entrust my spirit; you redeemed me, O Lord, God of truth.

7(6) You hated those who carefully guarded vanities uselessly, but as for me, I hoped in the Lord.

8(7) I will rejoice and be glad in your mercy, because you looked upon my humiliation; you saved my soul from dire straits

9(8) and did not imprison me in an enemy’s hands; you set my feet in a spacious place.

10(9) Have mercy on me, O Lord, because I am being afflicted; my eye was troubled by vexation, my soul and my belly.

11(10) Because my life failed in pain and my years in sighing, my strength grew weak in poverty, and my bones were troubled.

12(11) With all my enemies I became a reproach, and to my neighbors, very much, and a fright to my acquaintances; those who would see me outside fled from me.

13(12) I passed out of mind like one who is dead; I became like a broken vessel, 14(13) because I heard censure from many sojourning all around; when they gathered together against me, they plotted to take my soul.

I will instruct you and teach you in this way in which you should go; I will fix my eyes upon you.

Do not be like horse and mule, who have no understanding; with bridle and muzzle squeeze their jaws when they do not come near to you.

Many are the scourges of the sinner, but mercy will surround him that hopes in the Lord.

Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, O righteous, and boast, all you upright in heart.

Psalm 32(33)

Pertaining to David.

Rejoice in the Lord, O you righteous. Praise befits the upright.

Acknowledge the Lord with a lyre; with a harp of ten strings make music to him.

Sing to him a new song; make music skillfully, with shouting.

because upright is the word of the Lord, and all his works are in faithfulness.

He loves mercy and justice; the earth is full of the mercy of the Lord.

By the word of the Lord the heavens were made firm, and by the breath of his mouth all their host, as he gathers the waters of the sea like a wineskin, as he puts the deeps in storehouses.

Let all the earth fear the Lord, and due to him let all the inhabitants of the world be shaken, because he it was that spoke, and they came to be; he it was that commanded, and they were created.

The Lord scatters counsels of nations, and he frustrates thoughts of peoples and frustrates counsels of rulers.

But the counsel of the Lord remains forever, thoughts of his heart to generation and generation.

Happy is the nation of whom the Lord is its God, a people he chose as a heritage for himself.

From heaven the Lord looked down; he saw all the sons of men.

From his prepared habitation he looked down on all the inhabitants of the earth—

he who alone fashioned their hearts, he who keeps observing all their deeds.

A king is not saved by a great army, and a giant will not be saved by the greatness of his strength.

Unreliable is a horse for deliverance, and by the greatness of its power it will not be saved.

Look, the eyes of the Lord are on those who fear him, those who hope in his mercy, to rescue their souls from death and to keep them alive in famine.

Our soul waits for the Lord, because he is our helper and protector, because in him our heart will be glad, and in his holy name we hoped.

May your mercy, O Lord, be upon us, even as we hoped in you.

Psalm 33(34)

Pertaining to David. When he changed his face before Abimelech, and he let him go, and he went away.

I will bless the Lord at every opportunity; continually shall his praise be in my mouth.

In the Lord my soul shall be commended; let the meek hear and be glad.

O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together.

I sought the Lord, and he hearkened to me, and from all my sojournings he rescued me.

Come to him, and be enlightened, and your faces shall never be put to shame.

10. When unjust witnesses rose up, they kept asking me about what I was not familiar with.
11. They would repay me evil for good,

16. I will acknowledge you in a large assembly;
    among a burdensome people I will praise
    you.
17. May those who unjustly are my enemies not be happy over me,
    those who hate me without cause and wink with the eyes,
because as they were speaking peace to me, they were also devising treachery in wrath.
And they widened their mouth against me; they said, "Good, Good, our eyes saw."
You saw, O Lord; do not pass by in silence! O Lord, do not be far from me!
Wake up! And pay attention to my trial, my God and my Lord, to my case!
Vindicate me, O Lord my God, according to your righteousness, and may they not be happy over me.
May they not say in their hearts, "Good for our soul!" Nor may they say, "We swallowed him up."
May those who are happy at my calamities be both shamed and embarrassed; let those who brag against me be clothed with shame and embarrassment.
May those who want my vindication rejoice and be glad, and let those who want the peace of his slave say ever more, "Let the Lord be magnified."
And my tongue shall declaim your righteousness, all day long your commendation.

Psalm 35(36)

Regarding completion. Pertaining to the slave of the Lord, to David.

Says the transgressor of the law in himself, in order to sin: there is no fear of the divine before his eyes, because he practiced deceit before him, that he might find lawlessness in him and hated.
The words of his mouth are lawlessness and deceit; he did not want to be sensible to do good.
Lawlessness he plotted on his bed; he was set on every way that was not good, and evil he did not treat with contempt.
O Lord, your mercy is in the sky, and your truth as far as the clouds.
Your righteousness is like divine mountains; your judgments are a great deep; humans and animals you will save, O Lord.

Psalm 36(37)

Do not fret among wicked people, nor be envious of those that do lawlessness, because like grass they will quickly wither and like green herbs they will quickly fall off.
Hope in the Lord, and keep doing kindness, and encamp in the land, and you will be tended by its wealth.
Take delight in the Lord, and he will give you the requests of your heart.
Disclose your way to the Lord, and hope in him, and he will act.
And he will publish your vindication like light, and your judgment like noonday.
Submit to the Lord, and supplicate him; do not fret over the one that prospers in his way, over a person that commits transgression of the law.
Cease from wrath, and forsake anger. Do not fret so as to do evil, because the evil doers shall be destroyed, but those who wait for the Lord—they shall inherit land.
And yet a little while, and the sinner will be no more, and you will seek his place and will not find.
But the meek shall inherit land.

and take delight in an abundance of peace.

12 The sinner will closely watch the righteous and gnash his teeth at him, but the Lord will laugh at him, because he foresees that his day will come.

13 A sword the sinners drew; they bent their bow to bring down poor and needy, to slay the upright in heart.

14 May their sword enter into their own heart, and their bows be crushed.

15 Better is a little that the righteous has than the great wealth of sinners, because sinners' arms shall be crushed, but the Lord upholds the righteous.

16 The Lord knows the ways of the blameless, and their heritage shall be forever; they shall not be put to shame in an evil time, and in days of famine they shall be fed, because the sinners will perish, and the enemies of the Lord, as soon as they are glorified and exalted, vanishing like smoke they vanished.

17 The sinner borrows and will not pay back, but the righteous is compassionate and keeps giving; because those that bless him shall inherit land, but those that curse him shall be destroyed.

18 A person's steps are directed by the Lord, and his way by will.

19 Should he fall, he will not crash, because the Lord steadies his hand.

20 Younger I used to be; indeed, I have grown old, and I did not see a righteous one forsaken or his offspring begging bread.

21 All day long he is merciful and lends, and his offspring shall become a blessing.

22 Because the Lord loves justice and will not forsake his devout, they shall be kept safe forever.

23 But the lawless shall be chased away, and the offspring of the impious shall be destroyed.

Psalm 37(38)

1 A Psalm. Pertaining to David. As a reminder.

2(1) O Lord, do not rebuke me in your anger or discipline me in your wrath,

3(2) because your arrows were stuck in me and you clamped your hand on me.

4(3) There is no healing in my flesh from before your wrath; there is no peace for my bones from before my sins,

5(4) because my acts of lawlessness went over my head; like a heavy burden they weighed on me.

Psalm 37(38)

1 The righteous shall inherit land and encamp on it forever and ever.

2 The mouth of the righteous shall declaim wisdom, and his tongue shall speak justice.

3 The law of his God is in his heart, and his steps shall not be tripped up.

4 The sinner watches for the righteous and seeks to put him to death.

5 But the Lord will not abandon him to his hands nor have him condemned, should he bring him to trial.

6 Wait for the Lord, and keep to his way, and he will lift you up to inherit land; when he destroys sinners, you will look on.

7 I saw an impious one being highly lifted up and being raised up like the cedars of Lebanon.

8 And I passed by, and look, he was not, and I sought him, but his place was not found.

9 Mark innocence, and behold uprightness, because there is a residue for the peaceable person.

10 But transgressors of the law shall be destroyed together; the residue of the impious shall be destroyed.

11 But deliverance of the righteous is from the Lord, and he is their protector in a time of affliction.

12 And the Lord will help them and rescue them, and he will deliver them from sinners and save them, because they hoped in him.

My wounds stank and festered from before my foolishness; all day long I would go around looking sullen, because my loin muscles were filled with mockeries and there is no healing in my flesh. I was vilified and humiliated utterly; I would roar due to my heart’s groaning.

O Lord, before you is all my desire, and my groaning was not hidden from you.

My heart was troubled, my strength failed me, and as for the light of my eyes—it too is not with me.

My friends and my fellows approached opposite me and stood, and my next of kin stood far off.

And those who seek my soul took to violence, and those who seek my hurt spoke vanities, and treacheries they contemplated all day long.

But as for me, I, like the deaf, would not hear, and like a mute not opening his mouth.

And in my musing, a fire will burn. I spoke with my tongue:

and cast them out;

4(3) for not by their own sword did they inherit land,
and their own arm did not save them;
rather, your right hand and your arm,
and the illumination of your countenance,
because you delighted in them.

5(4) You are my very King and my God,
he who commands acts of deliverance for Jakob.
6(5) Through you we shall gore our enemies, and through your name we shall despise our opponents.

7(6) For not in my bow shall I hope, and my sword will not save me.

8(7) For you saved us from those who afflict us, and those who hate us you put to shame.

9(8) In God we shall be commended all day long, and in your name we shall acknowledge forever.

Interlude on strings

10(9) But now, you rejected us and put us to shame and will not go out among our hosts.

11(10) You turned us back rather than our enemies, and those who hate us kept snatching spoil for themselves.

12(11) You gave us like sheep for eating, and among the nations you scattered us.

13(12) You sold your people without price, and there was no abundance in their exchange.

14(13) You made us a reproach to our neighbors, a mockery and laughingstock to those around us.

15(14) You made us into an illustration among the nations, a moving of the head among the peoples.

16(15) All day long my embarrassment is before me, and the shame of my face covered me at the sound of one that reproaches and babbles, from before enemy and pursuer.

17(16) All this came upon us, and we did not forget you, and we did no wrong against your covenant.

18(17) And our heart did not stand back, and you diverted our paths from your way, because you humbled us in a place of ill-treatment and death’s shadow covered us.

19(18) If we had forgotten the name of our God and if we had spread out our hands to a foreign god, would not God search this out? For he it is that knows the secrets of the heart;

20(19) because for your sake we are being put to death all day long, we were accounted as sheep for slaughter.

21(20) Wake up! Why do you sleep, O Lord? Arise, and do not reject us totally!

22(21) Why do you turn away your face? Why do you forget our poverty and our affliction?

23(22) Because our soul was humbled down to the dust, our stomach clung to the ground.

24(23) Rise up, O Lord; help us, and redeem us for the sake of your name.

25(24) My heart erupted with a goodly theme; it is I that address my works to the king; my tongue is a pen of a swift scribe.

26(25) Youthful in beauty you are, beyond the sons of men; grace was poured on your lips; therefore God blessed you forever.

27(26) Gird your sword on your thigh, O powerful one, in your bloom and beauty, and draw, and prosper, and become king for the sake of truth and meekness and righteousness, and your right hand will guide you marvelously.

28(27) Your arrows are sharp, O powerful one,—peoples shall fall under you—in the heart of the king’s enemies.

29(28) Your throne, O God, is forever and ever. A rod of equity is the rod of your rule; you loved righteousness and hated lawlessness.

30(29) Therefore God, your God, anointed you with oil of rejoicing beyond your partners.

31(30) Myrrh and myrrh oil and cassia waft from your clothes, from ivory bastions, with which they made you glad;

32(31) Daughters of kings are in your honor; the queen stood at your right in gold-woven clothing, decked out in many colors.

33(32) Of a king’s daughter—all her glory is within, decked out with golden tassels, in many colors.

Psalm 45(46)

God is our refuge and power, very much a helper in afflictions that befall us. Therefore we will not fear, when the earth is troubled and mountains be transposed in hearts of seas.

Psalm 46(47)

All you nations, clap your hands; shout to God with a voice of rejoicing, because the Lord Most High is awesome, a great king over all the earth. He subdued peoples to us, and nations under our feet. He chose for us his own heritage, the comeliness of Jacob, which he loved.

Psalm 47(48)

Great is the Lord and very much praiseworthy in our God's city, his holy mountain, since he planted it well, for the enjoyment of the whole earth. Mountains of Zion, the slopes of the north, the city of the great King—within its bastions God is known, when he supports it, because, look, the kings assembled; they came together. With a violent blast you will shatter ships of Tharsis. As we heard, so we saw in a city of the Lord of hosts, in a city of our God. God founded it forever!
let the daughters of Judea rejoice, because of your judgments.

13(12) Surround Sion, and embrace it;
recount in its towers; 14(13) dispose your hearts for its power,
and inspect its bastions, that you may recount to the next generation that this is God,
our God forever, even forever and ever.
He himself will shepherd us for ages.

Psalm 48(49)

Regarding completion. Pertaining to the sons of Kore. A Psalm.

2(1) Hear this, all you nations;
give ear, all inhabitants of the world,
both the earthborn and the sons of men,
rich one and needy one together.

3(2) My mouth shall speak wisdom and the meditation of my heart understanding.

4(3) I will incline my ear to an illustration;
I will work out my problem with a harp.

5(4) Why should I fear on an evil day?
The lawlessness at my heel will surround me—
those who trust in their power and boast of the abundance of their riches.

A brother does not ransom; shall anyone ransom?
He will not give to God his atonement and the price for redeeming his soul.

10 And he desisted forever, and will yet live completely;
he will not see corruption,
when he sees wise people die!

11 Fool and dolt will perish together and leave their wealth to strangers.

They named their lands their own.

12(11) And their graves are their homes forever, their coverts to generation and generation.
They named their lands their own.

13(12) And a person held in honor did not understand.
He resembled senseless beasts and became like them.

This way of theirs is a pitfall to them,
and afterwards with their mouth they will express contentment.

Interlude on strings

15(14) Like sheep they were placed in Hades.
Death shall be their shepherd, and the upright shall exercise dominion on them at dawn,
and help for them will grow old in Hades, away from their glory.

16(15) On the other hand, God will ransom my soul from Hades’ hand, when he receives me.

Interlude on strings

Do not be afraid when a person becomes rich and when the glory of his house increases.

17(16) because, when he dies, he will take nothing, nor will his glory go down with him,

19(18) because in his life his soul will be blessed;
he will acknowledge you when you treat him well;

20(19) he will enter the company of his fathers;
he will never again see light.

21(20) A person held in honor did not understand.
He was comparable to beasts and became like them.

Psalm 49(50)

A Psalm. Pertaining to Asaph.

1 God of gods, the Lord, spoke and summoned the earth
from the sun’s rising even to its setting.

2 Out of Sion is the splendor of his beauty;
God will come conspicuously,
our God—and he will not pass by in silence;
a fire will burn before him,
and all around him is a mighty tempest—very much.

3 He will summon the sky above and the earth, to judge his people discerningly.

Gather to him his devout,
who make a covenant with him by sacrifices.

5 The heavens will declare his righteousness,
because God is judge.

Interlude on strings

"Hear, O my people, and I will speak to you,
O Israel, and I testify against you.
God, your God, I am.

Not for your sacrifices will I rebuke you;
nay, your whole burnt offerings are continually before me.

I will not accept calves from your house nor young he-goats from your folds, because all wild animals of the forest are mine,
beasts on the mountains and cattle.

I know all the birds of the air,
and a field’s beauty is with me.

And the heavens will declare his righteousness,
because God is judge.

Psalm 50(51)

1. Regarding completion. A Psalm. Pertaining to David. When the prophet Nathan came to him, after he had gone into Bersabee.

2. Have mercy on me, O God, according to your great mercy, and according to the abundance of your compassion blot out my lawless deed.

3. Wash me thoroughly from my lawlessness, and from my sin cleanse me, because my lawlessness I know and my sin is ever before me.

4. Against you alone did I sin, and what is evil before you I did, so that you may be justified in your words and be victorious when you go to law.

5. For, look, I was conceived in lawlessness, and in sin did my mother crave for me.

6. For, look, you loved truth;

7. You will sprinkle me with hyssop, and I shall be cleansed; you will wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

8. You will make me hear joy and gladness; humbled bones will rejoice.

9. Turn away your face from my sins, and all my lawless acts blot out.

10. A sacrifice of praise will glorify me, and there lies a way by which I will show him the deliverance of God.

11. A clean heart create in me, O God, and an upright spirit renew within me.

12. Rescue me from bloodshed, O God, O God of my deliverance; my tongue will rejoice at your righteousness.

13. O Lord, my lips you will open, and my mouth will declare your praise,

14. Do good to Sion in your good pleasure, and let the walls of Jerusalem be built; then you will delight in a sacrifice of righteousness, in offering and whole burnt offerings; then they will offer calves on your altar.

Psalm 51(52)

1. Regarding completion. Of understanding. Pertaining to David. When Doeg the Edomite came and reported to Saul and said to him, “David came to the house of Abimelech.”

2. Why do you boast in malice, O powerful one, of lawlessness all day long?

3. Injustice your tongue devised. Like a sharpened razor you produced treachery.

4. You loved evil more than goodness, injustice more than speaking justice.

5. You loved all words for drowning, a deceitful tongue.
Therefore God will break you down completely; may he snatch you and make you flee from a covert, and your rootedness from the land of the living.

Psalm 52(53)
1 Regarding completion. Over Mæleth. Of understanding. Pertaining to David.
2(1) A fool said in his heart, “There is no God.” They became corrupt and were abominable in lawless acts; there is no one who is doing what is good.
3(2) God peered down from the sky on the sons of men to see if there was any who had understanding or who sought after God.
4(3) All turned away; as well they became useless; there is no one who is doing what is good; there is not even one.
5(4) Shall they never learn, all those who practice lawlessness? Those who eat my people like eating bread did not call upon God.
6(5) There they were in great fear, where there was no fear, because God scattered bones of men-pleasers; they were put to shame, because God despised them.
7(6) Who shall give out of Sion the deliverance of Israel?

Psalm 53(54)
1 Regarding completion. Among hymns. Of understanding. Pertaining to David. 2When the Ziphites came and told Saul, “Look, is David not hidden within us?”
3(1) O God, in your name save me, and in your power you will judge me.
4(2) O God, listen to my prayer; give ear to the words of my mouth,
5(3) because strangers rose up against me and strong ones sought my soul; they did not set God before them.
6(4) For, look, God helps me, and the Lord is supporter of my soul.
7(5) He will repay the harm to my enemies. With your truth, destroy them.

Psalm 54(55)
1 Regarding completion. Among hymns. Of understanding. Pertaining to David.
2(1) Give ear, O God, to my prayer, and do not disdain my petition.
3(2) Attend to me, and listen to me; I was vexed in my pondering and was troubled
4(3) by the noise of an enemy and by the affliction of a sinner, because they tilted lawlessness against me, and in wrath they kept being indignant at me.
5(4) My heart was troubled within me, and death’s terror fell upon me.
6(5) Fear and trembling came upon me, and darkness covered me.
7(6) And I said, “Who will give me wings like a dove, and I shall fly away and be at rest?”
8(7) Look, I became a fugitive far away, and I lodged in the wilderness.
9(8) I would welcome the one that would save me from faintheartedness and tempest.

5 In God I will commend my words;
   in God I hoped;
   I will not fear what flesh may do to me.

6 All day long they would make my words loathsome;
   all their thoughts against me are for evil.

7 They will sojourn and hide;
   my heel they will watch,

Psalm 57 (58)

57

57 to God who acts as my benefactor.
4(3) He sent from heaven and saved me;
he gave over to reproach those who were trampling on me.

Interlude on strings

God sent forth his mercy and his truth, 5(4) and he rescued my soul from among whelps.
I slept, though troubled.
As for sons of men—their teeth are a weapon and darts,
and their tongue a sharp dagger.

6(5) Be exalted to the heavens, O God,
and to all the earth be your glory.

7(6) A trap they prepared for my feet,
and they bowed down my soul.
They dug a hole in front of me,
and they fell into it.

Interlude on strings

8(7) My heart is ready, O God;
my heart is ready.
I will sing and make music.

9(8) Awake, my glory!
Awake, O harp and lyre!
I will awaken at dawn.
10(9) I will acknowledge you, O Lord, among peoples;
I will make music to you among nations, because your mercy was magnified to the heavens,
and to the clouds your truth.

12(11) A righteous one will be glad when he sees earth.”

Psalm 58 (59)

1 Regarding completion. Do Not Destroy.
Pertaining to David. For a stele inscription.
When Saul sent and watched his house to put him to death.

2(1) Deliver me from my enemies, O God, and redeem me from those who rise up against me.

3(2) Rescue me from those who practice lawlessness,
and from men of blood save me,
because look, they hunted my soul;
strong ones set themselves against me.
Neither my lawlessness nor my sin,
O Lord—
5(4) without lawlessness they ran straight on.
Rouse yourself to meet me, and see!

6(5) And you, Lord God of hosts, God of Israel,
pay attention to visiting all the nations;
pity none of those who practice
lawlessness.

Interlude on strings

7(6) Toward evening they will return fire fell, and they did not see the sun.

10(9) a Before your thistles take note of the thorn-

Interlude on strings

Toward evening they will return and be famished like a dog and encircle a city.

They will be scattered in order to eat, but if they do not get their fill, then they will grumble.

But as for me, I will sing to your power and will rejoice in your mercy in the morning, because you became my supporter and a refuge in my day of affliction; my helper, I will make music to you, because you, O God, are my supporter, my God, my mercy.

Psalm 59(60)

Regarding completion. For those that shall yet be changed. For a stele inscription. Pertaining to Dauid. For teaching. When he set on fire Mesopotamia of Syria and Syria Soba, and Ioab returned and struck the Ravine of Salt, twelve thousand.

O God, you rejected us and brought us down; you became angry and had compassion on us.

You caused the land to quake and threw it into confusion; heal its fractures, because it was shaken.

You showed your people hard things; you gave us to drink wine of stupefaction.

You gave a signal to those who fear you, to flee out from before a bow.

In order that your beloved might be rescued, save with your right hand, and hearken to me.

God spoke in his holy place: "I will rejoice, and I will divide up Sikima, and the vale of the tents I will portion out.

Mine is Galaad, and mine is Manasse, and Ephraim is the strengthening of my head; Ioudas is my king.

Moab is a cauldron of my hope; on Iduinea I will put my sandal; to me allophyles were subjugated."

Who will bring me to a city of fortification? Who will guide me as far as Iduinea?

Are you not the one that rejects us, O God? And you will not go out, O God, with our hosts.

Grant us help from affliction, and worthless is human deliverance.

God we shall produce power, and he it is that will treat with contempt those that afflict us.

Psalm 60(61)

Listening to my petition, O God; pay attention to my prayer.

From the ends of the earth I cried to you, when my heart was weary. On a rock you exalted me.

You guided me, because you became my hope, a tower of strength from before an enemy.

I will sojourn in your covert forever, find shelter in the shelter of your wings.

Because you, O God, you listened to my vows, you gave a heritage to those who fear your name.

You will add days to a king's days, his years until days of generation and generation.

He will remain forever before God; his mercy and truth, who will seek out?

So I will make music to your name forever and ever, that I pay my vows day after day.

Psalm 61(62)

Shall not my soul be subject to God?
For from him is my deliverance.
3(2) Indeed, he is my God and my Savior,
my supporter; I shall be shaken no more.

4(3) How long do you assail against a person?
You commit murder, all of you,
as by means of a wall that leans and a fence that slants.

5(4) But they planned to impugn my honor.
They ran with a lie;
with their mouth they would bless and curse with their heart.

But to God be subject, O my soul, because from him is my endurance.
6(5) Indeed, he is my God and my Savior,
my supporter, I shall never be a fugitive.

Interlude on strings
7(6) Because your mercy is better than lives, my lips will commend you.

5(4) So I will bless you in my life;
in your name I will lift up my hands.

As though with fat and creaminess may my soul be satisfied,

and with lips of rejoicing my mouth will praise you.

7(6) If I made mention of you on my bed, in the early morning I would meditate on
you,

8(7) because you became my helper, and in the shelter of your wings I will rejoice.

9(8) My soul clung to you;
your right hand upheld me.

10(9) But they sought my soul for no good reason;
they shall enter into the deepest parts of the earth;

11(10) they shall be given over to a sword's power;
prey for foxes they shall be.

12(11) But the king shall be glad in God; every one who swears by him shall be commended, because the mouth of people speaking unjust things was stopped up.

Psalm 63(64)

1 Regarding completion. A Psalm. Pertaining to Daud.

2(1) Listen to my voice, O God, when I petition;
from fear of an enemy deliver my soul.

3(2) You sheltered me from a swarm of wicked people,
from a crowd of people who practice
lawlessness,

4(3) who whetted their tongues like a sword,
who bent their bow—a cruel act,

5(4) to shoot in secret at a blameless one;
suddenly they will shoot at him and will not fear.

6(5) They empowered each other with a wicked word;
they talked in order to hide snares;

7(6) They searched out acts of lawlessness;
they expired while conducting their search.

8(7) A dart of infants their blows became,
and against them their tongues became weak.

9(8) All who saw them were troubled.

10(9) And every person feared, and they proclaimed the works of God,
and what he had done they perceived.

11(10) One who is righteous will be glad in the Lord
and will hope in him.
And all the upright in heart shall be

2(1) To you a hymn is due, O God, in Sion, and to you shall a vow be paidb.

3(2) Listen to my prayer!

4(3) Words of lawlessness overpowered us, and our impieties you will atone.

5(4) Happy is he whom you chose and took to your self; he shall encamp in your courts. We shall be filled with the good things of your house; holy is your shrine, (5)admirable in justice.

6(5) Hearken to us, O God, our savior, the hope of all the ends of the earth, and in a sea far away,

7(6) as he prepares mountains by his strength, girded with dominance,

8(7) he who stirs the hollow of the sea, roars of its waves. The nations will be troubled, and those who inhabit the limits will be awed by your signs. Goings-out of morning and evening you will cheer.

9(8) You visited the earth and intoxicated it; you multiplied enriching itd; the river of God was filled with water; you prepared its nourishment, because so is your preparation.

10(9) Intoxicate its furrows! Multiply its crops; it will be glad with its drops, when it sprouts.

11(10) You will bless the crown of the year of your goodness, and your plains shall be filled with fatness.

12(11) The seasonable things of the wilderness will be made fat, and with rejoicing the hills will gird themselves.

Psalm 65(66)

1 Regarding completion. fAn Ode. Of a Psalmf.

2(1) Make a joyful noise to God, all the earth; do make music to his name;

give glory to his praise.

3 Say to God, "How awesome are your works! Because of your great power, your enemies will play false with you.

4 Let all the earth do obeisance to you and make music to you; let them make music to your name." Interlude on strings

5 Come, and see the works of God; he is awesome in his plans beyond the sons of men,

6 he who turns the sea back into dry land; in a river they will pass through on foot. There we shall be glad in him, who rules the ages in his dominance; his eyes keep watch on the nations, those that provoke—let them not be exalted in themselves. Interlude on strings

8 Bless our God, O nations, and make heard the voice of the praise of him who placed my soul in life and does not give my feet to wavering.

9 Because you, O God, tested us, you tried us as silver is tried.

10 You brought us into the snare; you laid afflictions on our back; you mounted persons on our heads; we went through fire and water, and you brought us out to revival.

11 I will enter into your house with whole burnt offerings I will pay you my vows, which my lips emitted and my mouth spoke in my affliction. Interlude on strings

12 Fatted whole burnt offerings I will offer to you, with incenseh of rams; I will do for you cows with goats.

13 Come, hear, and I will tell, all you who fear God, what all he did for my soul.

14 To him I cried with my mouth, and I exalted beneath my tongue. If I was contemplating injustice in my heart, let the Lord not listen.

15 Therefore God listened to me; he gave heed to the voice of my petition.

16 Blessed be God, who did not remove my prayer and his mercy from me.

Psalm 68(69)

1 Regarding completion. Over those that shall be changed. Pertaining to David.

2(1) Save me, O God, because waters came as far as my soul. I was stuck in deep mire, and there is no foothold; I came into the depths of the sea, and a tempest overwhelmed me.

3(2) I grew weary of crying; my throat was hoarse. My eyes failed from hoping in my God.

5(4) They multiplied beyond the hairs of my head, those who hate me without cause; my enemies who persecuted me unjustly became strong.

6(5) O God, you knew my folly, and the wrongs I did were not hidden from you.

7(6) May those who wait for you not be put to shame because of me, O Lord, Lord of hosts; may those who seek you not be embarrased because of me, O God of Israel,

8(7) because for your sake I bore reproach; embarrassment covered my face.

9(8) I became estranged from my brothers, and a visitor to the sons of my mother, because the zeal for your house consumed me, and the reproaches of those who reproach you fell on me.

11(10) And I bent my soul with fasting, and it became reproaches to me.

12(11) And I made sackcloth my clothing and became an illustration to them.

13(12) About me those who sit in a gate would gossip, and against me those who drink wine would make music.

14(13) But as for me, with my prayer to you, O Lord! It is a time of favor, O God, in the abundance of your mercy. Hearken to me with truth of your deliverance.

15 Save me from the mud so that I shall not get stuck; may I be rescued from those who hate me and from the depth of waters.

16(15) Do not let a tempest of water overwhelm me or a deep swallow me up or a cistern close its mouth over me.

17(16) Listen to me, O Lord, because your mercy is kind; according to the abundance of your compassion look upon me.

BOOK III
(Psalms 72[73]–88[89])

Psalm 72(73)

1 A Psalm. Pertaining to Asaph.

(1) How good is God to Israel, to the upright in heart!
2 But as for me, my feet were almost shaken; my steps nearly slipped,
3 because I was envious of the lawless, as I observed sinners’ peace,
4 because there is nothing negative to their death and no firmness in their scourge.
5 They are not in trouble of human beings, and with human beings they will not be scourged.
6 Therefore pride seized them; they clothed themselves with injustice and their impiety.
7 Their injustice will go forth as though from fat; they progressed according to their heart’s disposition.
8 They schemed and spoke with malice; injustice they spoke against the heights.
9 They set their mouths against heaven, and their tongues ranged over the earth.
10 Therefore my people will return here, and full days will be found for them.
11 And they said, “How did God know?” and “Is there knowledge in the Most High?”
12 Look, these are sinners and they flourish; always did they possess wealth.
13 And I said, “So, in vain did I keep my heart just and washed my hands in innocence.
14 And I became scourged all day long, and my rebuke lasted till morning.”
15 If I said, “I will talk in this way,” look, I would have been faithless to the family of your sons.
16 And I thought how to understand this; a wearisome task was before me until I went into the sanctuary of God, and perceived their end.
17 But on account of deceits, you set for them; you brought them down, when they were raised up.
18 How they became desolate in a moment! They failed; they perished on account of their lawlessness.
19 Like a dream when one awakes, O Lord, in your city you will despise their phantom.

Psalm 73(74)

1 Of understanding. Pertaining to Asaph.

(1) Why did you reject, O God, totally; was your anger aroused against sheep of your pasture?
2 Remember your congregation, which you acquired long ago; you redeemed a rod of your heritage; fyou redeemed this Mount Sion, whereon you encamped.
3 Raise your hands against their acts of pride, totally, which evils the enemy committed among your saints.
4 And those who hate you boasted within your feast; they set up their emblems as emblems did not know.
5 As though into the entrance above—
6 as though they were in a forest of trees, they felled its doors with axes, together, with woodcutter’s ax and stonecutter’s chisel, they smashed it.
7 They set on fire your sanctuary with fire; to the ground they desecrated the covert of your name.
8 They said in their heart—the clan of them together—
   “Come, and let us burn all the feasts of God from off the land.”
9 Our emblems we did not see; there is no longer a prophet, and us he will know no longer.
10 How long, O God, will the enemy reproach, the opponent utterly provoke your name?

11 Why do you turn away your hand, and your right hand from within your bosom, totally?

12 Yet God is our King from of old; he worked deliverance in the midst of the earth.

13 It was you who strengthened the sea by your power; you shattered the heads of the dragons upon the water.

14 It was you who crushed the heads of the dragon; you gave him as food to the Ethiopian peoples.

15 It was you who broke through springs and wadis; it was you who dried up streams of Etham.

16 Yours is the day, and yours is the night; it was you who established lighting and sun.

17 It was you who made all the bounds of the earth; summer and spring, it was you who fashioned them.

18 Remember this: an enemy reproached the Lord, and a foolish people provoked your name.

19 Do not deliver a soul that acknowledges you to the wild animals; the souls of your needy do not forget totally.

20 Have regard for your covenant, because the darkened ones of the land were filled with houses of lawlessness.

21 Let not a humbled one be turned away in shame; poor and needy will praise your name.

22 Rise up, O God; plead your cause; remember how you are reproached by the fool all day long.

23 Do not forget the voice of your suppliants; the pride of those who hate you went up to you continually.

Psalm 74(75)

2(1) We will acknowledge you, O God; we will acknowledge and call upon your name.

8(7) because God is judge, this one he humbles and that one he exalts;

9(8) because there is a cup in the Lord's hand, of pure wine, full of a mixture, and he tipped it from side to side, all the sinners of the earth shall drink.

10(9) But as for me, I will rejoice forever; I will make music to the God of Iakob.

11(10) And all the horns of sinners I will break off, and the horns of the righteous one shall be exalted.

Psalm 75(76)

2(1) God is known in Judea; in Israel his name is great.

3(2) And his place was in peace, and his place of settlement was in Sion.

4(3) There he crushed the power of the bows, shield and sword and war.

5(4) It is you who gives light marvelously from everlasting mountains.

6(5) All the stupid in heart were troubled; they slept their sleep and found nothing—all the men of wealth, with their hands.

7(6) At your rebuke, O God of Iakob, those mounted on horses became drowsy.

Interlude on strings

8(7) You—awesome you are! And who shall withstand you? From then is your anger.

9(8) From the sky you made judgment heard; earth feared and was still,

Psalm 77(78)

1 Of understanding. Pertaining to Asaph.
2(1) Pay attention, O my people, to my law;
incline your ears to the words of my mouth.
3 I will open my mouth in a parable;
I will utter problems from of old,
3 things that we heard, and we knew them,
and our fathers told us 4 They were not hidden from their children to a next generation,
as they kept telling of the praises of the Lord and of his dominance and of the wonders that he did.
5 And he established a witness in Iakob and set a law in Israel, which things he commanded our fathers to make them known to their sons, 6 that a next generation might know them,
sons that will be born,
and they shall rise up and tell them to their sons
so that they should set their hope in God and not forget the works of God and seek out his commandments, that they should not be like their fathers,
a generation, crooked and embittering,
a generation which did not set its heart aright,
and its spirit was not faithful to God.
9 Ephraim’s sons, though bending and shooting their bows, were turned back on a day of war.
10 They did not keep the covenant of God,
and in his law they did not want to walk.
11 And they forgot his benefactions and his marvels that he showed them in the sight of their fathers, which marvels he worked in the land of Egypt, in Tanis’ plain.
13 He broke asunder a sea and brought them through;

he made waters stand like a wineskin. And he led them with a cloud by day, and all night long with an illumination of fire.

He broke asunder a rock in a wilderness and gave them drink as from a voluminous deep.

And he brought out water from a rock and brought down waters like rivers.

And they added still to sin against him; they embittered the Most High in a waterless land.

And they tested God in their hearts by demanding food for their souls. And they spoke against God and said, "Surely, God will not be able to spread a table in a wilderness? Even though he struck a rock and waters gushed out and wadis deluged, surely, he cannot also give bread or spread a table for his people?"

Therefore, the Lord heard and was put out, and a fire was kindled in Iakob, and anger mounted against Israel, because they had no faith in God nor did they hope in his saving power.

He commanded clouds above and opened heaven's doors, and he rained down manna for them to eat, and heaven's bread he gave them.

Bread of angels man ate; provisions he sent them in abundance.

He removed a south wind from heaven, and he led on, by his dominance, a southwest wind, and he rained upon them flesh like dust and winged birds like the sand of seas, and they fell in the midst of their camp, all around their coverts.

And they ate and were well filled, and what they craved he brought them; they were not deprived of what they craved. While their food was still in their mouth, God's wrath also rose against them, and he killed among their sleek ones, and the select of Israel he shackled.

Amidst all these things they still sinned, and they did not believe in his marvels. And in vanity did their days end, and their years with haste.

When he was killing them, they would seek him out, and they would turn to God and be early. And they remembered that God was their helper and God the Most High was their redeemer.

And they deceived him with their mouth, and with their tongue they lied to him.

And their heart was not upright with him, nor were they true to his covenant. Yet he is compassionate and will atone for their sins and not destroy them, and he will increase to turn away his anger and not ignite all his wrath.

And he remembered that they were flesh, a breath that passes and does not come again.

How often they embittered him in the wilderness; they provoked him to anger in an arid land!

And they turned about and tested God, and the Holy One of Israel they provoked.

They did not keep in mind his hand, the day on which he redeemed them from an oppressor's hand; how he displayed in Egypt his signs, and his wonders in Tanis' plain.

And he turned their rivers into blood, and their pools, so that they could not drink.

He sent a dog-fly among them, and it devoured them, and a frog, and it destroyed them.

And he gave their crops over to the rust, and their labors to the grasshopper.

He killed their vine with hail and their mulberry trees with the hoarfrost.

And he gave over their cattle to hail and their property to the fire.

He sent among them his anger's wrath, anger and wrath and affliction, a dispatch through wicked angels.

He made a path for his wrath; he did not spare their souls from death, and their cattle he consigned to death.

And he struck every firstborn in Egypt, first fruit of their labors in the coverts of Cham.

And he removed his people like sheep and brought them up like a flock in a wilderness.

And he guided them in hope, and they were not in dread, but their enemies a sea covered.

And he brought them to a territory of his holy precinct, this mountain that his right hand acquired.

And he threw out nations from before them, and he distributed to them shares by measuring line and made the tribes of Israel encamp in their coverts.

And they tested and embittered God the Most High. And his testimonies they did not observe and turned away and were faithless as also their fathers; they were twisted into a crooked bow. And they provoked him to anger with their hills, and with their carved images they moved him to jealousy. God heard and disdained, and he treated Israel with utter contempt. And he rejected his tent at Selōb, a covert where he encamped among human beings, and gave their strength over to captivity and their comeliness into an enemy’s hands. And he consigned his people to a sword, and his heritage he disdained. Their young men fire devoured, and their girls were not bewailed. Their priests fell by sword, and their widows will not be lamented. And the Lord awoke as one that sleeps, like a strong man intoxicated with wine. And he struck his enemies backwards; everlasting disgrace he put them to. And he rejected the covert of Ioseph, and the tribe of Ephraim he did not choose, and he chose the tribe of Ioudas, Mount Sion, which he loved. And he built his holy precinct like that of unicorns, in the land—he founded it forever. And he chose Dauid his slave and took him from the sheepfolds of the sheep; from behind the lambing ewes he took him to shepherd Iakob his people and Israel his inheritance. And he shepherded them in the innocence of his heart, and by the cleverness of his hands he guided them.

Psalm 78(79)

A Psalm. Pertaining to Asaph.

1 O God, nations came into your inheritance; they defiled your holy shrine; they made Ierousalem into a garden-watcher’s hut.
2 They placed the carcasses of your slaves as food for the birds of the air, the flesh of your devout for the wild animals of the earth.
3 They poured out their blood like water all around Ierousalem, and there was no one to bury.
4 We became a reproach to our neighbors, mockery and derision to those around us.
5 How long, O Lord, will you be utterly angry, will your jealousy burn like fire?
6 Pour out your wrath on nations that do not know you and on kingdoms that did not call on your name, because they devoured Iakob and his place they laid waste.
7 Do not remember our lawless deeds of long ago; let your compassion speedily preoccupy us, because we became very poor.
8 Help us, O God our savior; for the sake of the glory of your name, O Lord, rescue us, and atone for our sins, for the sake of your name, so that the nations may not say, “Where is their God?”— and let the avenging of the outpoured blood of your slaves be known among the nations before our eyes.
9 Let the groaning of the prisoners come before you; according to the greatness of your arm preserve the sons of those put to death.
10 Return sevenfold into the bosom of our neighbors their reproaching with which they reproached you, O Lord!
11 But we, your people and sheep of your pasture, will acknowledge you openly forever; to generation and generation we will recount your praise.

Psalm 79(80)

Regarding completion. Over those that will be changed. A witness. Pertaining to Asaph. A Psalm.

2(1) You who shepherd Israel, pay attention, you who guide Ioseph like sheep! You who sit upon the cheroubin, appear!
3(2) Before Ephraim and Beniamin and Manasse arouse your dominance, and come in order to save us!
4(3) O God, bring us back, and show your face, and we shall be saved.
5(4) O Lord God of hosts, how long will you be angry with the prayer of your slave, will you feed them with bread of tears, and give them tears to drink in measure?
Psalm 79(80)–81(82)

7(6) You made us a controversy to our neighbors, and our enemies mocked us.

8(7) O God of hosts, bring us back, and show your face, and we shall be saved.

Interlude on strings

9(8) A vine you transferred from Egypt; you threw out nations and planted it.

10(9) You cleared the way for it, and you planted its roots and bit filled the land.

11(10) Its shade covered mountains, and its tendrils the cedars of God;

12(11) it sent out its branches as far as the sea, and as far as the river its shoots.

13(12) Why did you bring down its fence, and all who pass along the way pluck its fruit?

14(13) A boar from the forest ravaged it, and a lone wild beast fed on it.

15(14) O God of hosts, do bring back; look down from heaven, and see, and have regard for this vine, and restore that which your right hand planted—

16(15) and look upon a son of man, whom you made strong for yourself.

17(16) Burnt with fire and dug up it was; at the rebuke of your face they will perish.

18(17) Let your hand be upon the man at your right hand, and upon a son of man, whom you made strong for yourself.

19(18) And we will never turn away from you; you will revive us, and we will call on your name.

20(19) O Lord God of hosts, bring us back, and show your face, and we shall be saved.

Psalm 80(81)

1 Regarding completion. Over the wine vats.

2(1) Rejoice in God our helper; shout for joy to the God of Iakob.

3(2) Raise a melody, and sound a drum, delightful harp with lyre.

4(3) Trumpet with a trumpet at a new moon, at a high day of our feast,

5(4) because it is an ordinance for Israel and a judgment belonging to the God of Iakob.

6(5) A testimony in Joseph he made him, when he went out from the land of Egypt.

Psalm 81(82)

1 A Psalm. Pertaining to Asaph.

1(1) God stood in a gathering of gods, but in their midst he discerningly judges gods:

2 “How long will you judge with injustice and to sinners show partiality?

Psalm 82(83)

1 b An Ode. Of a Psalm b. Pertaining to Asaph.
2(1) O God, who shall be likened to you?
Do not keep silent nor be appeased,
O God,
3(2) because, look, your enemies made a tumult,
and those who hate you raised their head.
4(3) Against your people they laid villainous plans,
and they conspired against your saints.
5(4) They said, "Come, and let us destroy them from being a nation, and the name of Israel shall be remembered no more,"
6(5) because they conspired together with one accord;
against you they made a covenant—
7(6) the coverts of the Idumeans and the Ismaelites,
Moab and the Hagarites,
8(7) Gebal and Ammon and Amalek, and allophyles with the inhabitants of Tyre;
9(8) indeed, even Assour came along with them;
they came as support for the sons of Lot.

10(9) Do to them as to Madiam and to Sisara, as Iabin was at Wadi Kison!
11(10) They were destroyed at Aendor;
they became dung for the ground.
12(11) Make their rulers like Oreb and Zeb and Zebee and Salmana—all their rulers, 13(12) who said, "Let us take for our own possession the sanctuary of God."

14(13) O my God, make them like a wheel, like a straw in the wind.
15(14) Like a fire that will blaze through a forest,
as a flame might burn up mountains, 16(15) so you will pursue them with your tempest, and with your wrath dismay them.
17(16) Fill their faces with dishonor, and they will seek your name, O Lord.
18(17) Let them be put to shame and be dismayed forever and ever,
and let them be embarrassed and perish.
19(18) And let them know that your name is the

Psalm 83(84)

1 Regarding completion. Over the wine vats.
Pertaining to the sons of Kore. A Psalm.
2(1) How beloved are your coverts,
O Lord of hosts!
3(2) My soul longs and faints for the courts of the Lord;
my heart and my flesh rejoiced in a living God.
4(3) Indeed, a sparrow found itself a home,
and a turtledove a nest for herself,
where she will lay her young:

12(11) Because mercy and truth the Lord God loves, favor and glory he will bestow.
The Lord will not withhold good things

13(12) O Lord of hosts,
happy is the person who hopes in you.

Psalms 84(85)–86(87)

4(3) You put a stop to all your wrath; you turned away from your hot anger.
5(4) Bring us back, O God of our deliverance, and turn away your anger from us.
6(5) Surely, you will not be angry with us forever or prolong your anger from generation to generation?
7(6) O God, when it is you who brings us back you will revive us, and your people will be glad in you.
8(7) Show us, O Lord, your mercy, and your deliverance may you grant us.
9(8) I will hear what the Lord God will speak with me, because he will speak peace to his people and to his devout and to those who turn to him their heart.
10(9) But for those who fear him his deliverance is at hand, that glory may encamp in our land.

Psalm 85(86)

1 Pertaining to Dauid. A Prayer.

1 Incline your ear, O Lord, and hearken to me, because poor and needy I am.
2 Preserve my life, because I am a devotee; save your slave who hopes in you, O my God.
3 Have mercy on me, O Lord, because to you I will cry all day long.
4 Gladden the soul of your slave, because to you, O Lord, I lifted up my soul, because it is you, O Lord, who are kind and gentle and abounding in mercy to all who call on you.
5 Give ear, O Lord, to my prayer, and attend to the voice of my petition.
6 In a day of my affliction I cried to you, because you listened to me.
7 There is none like you among gods, O Lord, and there are no works like yours.
8 All the nations, as many as you made, shall come and do obeisance before you, O Lord, and shall glorify your name.

10 Because you are great and one who does wondrous things, you alone are God.
11 Guide me, O Lord, by your way, and I shall walk in your truth; let my heart be glad to revere your name.
12 I will acknowledge you, O Lord my God, with my whole heart, and I will glorify your name forever, because your mercy toward me is great, and you rescued my soul from deepest Hades.

Psalm 86(87)

1 Pertaining to the sons of Kore. A Psalm. Of an Ode.

1 His foundations are on the holy mountains; the Lord loves the gates of Sion more than all the coverts of Iakob.
2 Glorious things were spoken of you, O city of God.

4 I will mention Raab and Babylon to those who know me. And look, allophyles and Tyre and a people of Ethiopians—these were born there.
5 With regard to Sion, surely no person will say, “And a person was born in it?” And himself founded it—the Most High!
6 The Lord will recount, in a list of peoples and rulers, those that were born in it.

7 Seeing that they are glad, the habitation of all is in you.
Psalm 87(88)

2(1) O Lord, God of my deliverance, by day I cried out, and at night, before you;
3(2) let my prayer come before you; incline your ear to my petition.
4(3) Because my soul was full of troubles and my life drew near to Hades,
5(4) I was counted among those who go down into a pit;
I became like a helpless person, free among corpses,
6(5) like casualties lying asleep in a grave, whom you remembered no more,
and they were thrust away from your hand.
7(6) They put me in a very deep pit, in dark places and in death’s shadow.
8(7) Upon me your anger was fixed, and all your billows you brought upon me.

9(8) You distanced my acquaintances from me; they made me an abomination to themselves.
I was handed over and could not walk away;
10(9) my eyes grew weak through poverty.
I cried out to you, O Lord, all day long;
11(10) surely, you shall not work wonders for the dead?
Or will physicians raise up, and they acknowledge you?
12(11) surely, no one will declare your mercy in a grave and your truth in the ruin?
13(12) surely, your wonders will not be known in the darkness, and your righteousness in a land forgotten?
14(13) and I, O Lord, I cried out to you, and in the morning my prayer will anticipate you.
15(14) Why, O Lord, do you cast off my soul, do you turn away your face from me?
16(15) poor I am and in troubles from my youth, and after being exalted I was humbled and became perplexed.
17(16) your wrath swept over me;
18(17) they surrounded me like water all day long; they closed in on me at once.
19(18) you distanced from me friend and fellow and my acquaintances due to misery.

Psalm 88(89)

1  Of understanding. Pertaining to Aithan the Israelite.

2(1) Of your mercies, O Lord, I will sing forever; to generation and generation I will proclaim your truth with my mouth,
3(2) because you said, “Forever mercy will be built.” In the heavens your truth will be prepared.
4(3) “I made a covenant with my chosen ones; I swore to David my slave:
5(4) ‘Forever I will provide offspring for you and will build your throne for generation and generation.’

Interlude on strings

6(5) the heavens will acknowledge your wonders, O Lord, indeed, your truth in an assembly of holy ones,
7(6) because who in the clouds shall be deemed equal to the Lord?
And who among divine sons shall be compared with the Lord?
8(7) God is glorified in a council of holy ones, great and awesome to all that are around him.
9(8) O Lord God of hosts, who is like you? You are powerful, O Lord, and your truth is around you.
10(9) it is you who rule the might of the sea, and the surge of its waves you calm.
11(10) it is you who brought low a proud one like one wounded; with the arm of your power you scattered your enemies.
12(11) yours are the heavens, and yours is the earth; the world and all that is in it you founded.
13(12) the north and seas you created; Thabor and Hermon will rejoice in your name.
14(13) yours is the arm with dominance; let your hand be strong; let your right hand be exalted.
15(14) righteousness and judgment are a provision of your throne; mercy and truth will go in front of you.
Happy are the people who know a shout for joy; O Lord, in the light of your countenance they will walk, and in your name they will rejoice all day long,
and in your righteousness they will be exalted, because you are the boast of their power and by your favor our horn shall be exalted, because support is of the Lord and of the Holy One of Israel, our king.

Then you spoke in a vision to your devout ones and said:
"I added help to one who is powerful; I exalted one chosen from my people.
I found David my slave; with my holy oil I anointed him.
For my hand shall sustain him; my arm also shall strengthen him.
An enemy shall not profit by him, and a son of lawlessness shall not add to harm him.
And I will crush his enemies from before him, and those who hate him I will rout.
And my truth and my mercy shall be with him, and in my name his horn shall be exalted.
And I will set his hand in a sea, and in rivers his right hand.
He shall call upon me, 'My Father you are, my God and supporter of my deliverance!'
And I will make him a firstborn, high among the kings of the earth.
Forever I will keep my mercy for him, and my covenant with him will stand firm.
And I will establish his seed forever, and his throne as the sun before me,
and like the moon, established forever.
And the witness in heaven is faithful."

But you, you spurned and rejected; you put off your anointed.
You renounced the covenant with your slave; you defiled his sanctity in the dust.
You broke down all his defenses; you reduced his strongholds to cowardice.
All the way-farers plundered him; he became a reproach to his neighbors.
You exalted the right hand of his enemies; you made glad all his enemies.
You turned away the help of his sword, and you did not support him in battle.
You dismissed him from purification; his throne you smashed to the ground.
You diminished the days of his time; you covered him with shame.

How long, O Lord? Will you turn away completely? Will your wrath burn like fire?
Remember what my substance is. For, surely, you did not create all the sons of men in vain?
Who is the person who shall live and not see death, shall rescue his soul from the power of Hades?

Lord, where are your mercies of long ago, which you swore to David by your truth?
Remember, O Lord, the reproach against your slaves, which I bore in my bosom, from many nations, with which your enemies reproached, O Lord, with which they reproached what had been exchanged for your anointed.
Blessed be the Lord forever. May it be; may it be.

A Prayer. Pertaining to Moses, man of God.

4 because a thousand years in your sight are like the day of yesterday that passed and a watch in a night.

5 Years shall be the objects of their scorn; in the morning may it pass like young growth;

6 in the morning may it flourish and pass; in the evening may it fall, become hard and wither.

7 Because we expired by your wrath and by your anger we were troubled, you set our lawless deeds before you; our lifetime became an illumination of your face.

8 Because all our days expired and by your wrath we expired our years would ponder like a cobweb.

9 The days of our years—in them are seventy years, but if in acts of dominance eighty years, and the greater part of them is toil and trouble, because meekness came upon us, and we shall become disciplined.

10 Who knows the might of your wrath, and your anger from your fear?

11 "Make thus known to reckon up your right hand and those fettered in heart by wisdom."

12 Bring back, O Lord! How long? And be consoled over your slaves!

13 In the morning we were filled with your mercy, and we rejoiced and were glad in all our days.

14 We were glad as many days as you humbled us, years as we saw evil.

15 And look upon your slaves and upon your works, and guide their sons.

16 And let the splendor of the Lord our God be upon us and prosper upon us the work of our hands.

Psalm 90(91)

1 eA laudation. Of an Ode. Pertaining to David.

(1) He who lives by the help of the Most High, in a shelter of the God of the sky he will lodge.

2 He will say to the Lord, "My supporter you are and my refuge; my God, I will hope in him,"

3 because it is he who will rescue me from a trap of hunters and from a troublesome word;

4 with the broad of his back he will shade you, and under his wings you will find hope; with a shield his truth will surround you.

5 You will not be afraid of nocturnal fright, of an arrow that flies by day, of a deed that travels in darkness, of mishap and noonday demon.

6 At your side a thousand will fall, and ten thousand at your right, but it will not come near you.

7 Only with your eyes will you perceive, and the requital of sinners you will see.

8 Because you, O Lord, are my hope, the Most High you made your refuge.

9 No evil shall come before you, and no scourge shall come near your covert,

10 because he will command his angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways;

11 upon hands they will bear you up so that you will not dash your foot against a stone.

12 On asp and cobra you will tread, and you will trample lion and dragon under foot.

13 Because in me he hoped, I will also rescue him; I will protect him, because he knew my name.

14 He will call to me, and I will listen to him; I am with him in trouble; I will deliver and glorify him.

15 With length of days I will satisfy him and show him my deliverance.

Psalm 91(92)

1 gA Psalm. Of an Ode. Regarding the day of the sabbath.

(1) It is good to acknowledge the Lord and to make music to your name, O Most High,

(2) in order to declare your mercy in the morning and your truth every night on a ten-stringed harp, with an ode on a lyre,

(3) because you, O Lord, made me glad by your work, and at the deeds of your hands I will rejoice.

(5) How were your deeds extolled, O Lord!
Your thoughts reached great depth!

A foolish man will not know, and a stupid one will not understand these things.

When the sinners sprang up like grass also all who practice lawlessness popped up so that they may be destroyed forever and ever.

But you are most high forever, O Lord, because, look, your enemies shall perish and all those who practice lawlessness shall be scattered.

And my horn will be exalted like a unicorn’s, and my old age with thick oil.

And my eye looked at my enemies, and among those who keep rising against me, doing evil, my ear will hear.

A righteous one will flourish like a palm, and like a cedar in Lebanon he will increase.

Planted in the house of the Lord, in the courts of our God, they will flourish.

In prosperous old age they will still increase, and they will be living in comfort, to declare that the Lord my God is upright, and there is no injustice in him.

The Lord became king; he was robed in majesty; the Lord was robed in power and girded himself. Indeed, he made firm the world, that it shall not be shaken; your throne is prepared from then on; from everlasting you are.

The streams lifted up, O Lord; the streams lifted up their voices.

Due to the voices of many waters wondrous are the billows of the sea; wondrous on high is the Lord!

Your testimonies were made very sure; sanctity befits your house, O Lord, unto length of days.

The Lord is God of vengeance;

the God of vengeance spoke openly!

Be exalted, O you who judge the earth; give to the proud what they deserve!

How long shall sinners, O Lord, how long shall sinners boast, shall they utter and talk injustice, shall they talk—all those who practice lawlessness?

Your people, O Lord, they humbled, and your heritage they wronged.

Widow and guest they killed, and orphans they murdered, and they said, “The Lord will not see, nor will the God of Iakob understand.”

Do understand, O fools among the people, and, O stupid ones, think for once!

He who planted the ear, does he not hear? Or he who formed the eye, does he not perceive?

He who disciplines nations, will he not chastise, he who teaches man knowledge?

The Lord knows the thoughts of human beings, that they are vain.

Happy the person whom you discipline, O Lord, and teach him out of your law, to calm him due to wicked days until a hole is dug for the sinner, because the Lord will not reject his people and his heritage he will not abandon until justice turns into judgment, and with all the upright in heart clinging to it.

Who will rise up for me against wicked people? Or who will stand with me against people that practice lawlessness?

If it had not been that the Lord had helped me, my soul would virtually have sojourned in Hades.

If I were to say, “My foot has been shaken,” your mercy, O Lord, would help me. According to the multitude of my pains in my heart your consolations loved my soul.

Surely a throne of lawlessness shall not be in your presence, he who shapes mischief by ordinance?

They will hunt down the soul of a righteous one, and innocent blood they condemn.

And the Lord became to me a refuge, and my God my hoped-for helper.

And he will repay them for their lawlessness, and according to their wickedness
the Lord our God will wipe them out.

Psalm 94(95)

2 Let us anticipate his face with and a great King over all the gods, 4 because in his hand are the ends of the 5 because his is the sea and he made it

6 O come, let us do obeisance and prostrate ourselves before him, and let us weep before the Lord, who made us,
7 because he is our God and we are people of his pasture and sheep of his hand!

Today if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts, as at the embittering,
like the day of the trial in the wilderness,
where your fathers tried;
they put to the proof and saw my works.

For forty years I loathed that generation,
and said, “Always do they stray in heart,
and they did not know my ways.”

As I swore in my wrath,
“If they shall enter into my rest!”

Psalm 101(102)

1 A prayer. Pertaining to the poor one. When he is weary and pours out his petition before the Lord.
2(1) bO Lord, listen to my prayer,

14(13) When you rise up you will have compassion on Sion, because it is the appointed time to have compassion on it,
because the appointed time has come, 15(14) because your slaves held its stones dear and on its dust they will have compassion.
16(15) And the nations will fear the name of the Lord, and all the kings of the earth your glory, 17(16) because the Lord will build up Sion, and he will be seen in his glory.
18(17) He regarded the prayer of the lowly and did not despise their petition.
19(18) Let this be recorded for another generation, and a people, which is being created, will praise the Lord.
20(19) because he peered down from his holy height,
the Lord from heaven looked at the earth,
to hear the groaning of the prisoners,
to set free the sons of those put to death, 21(20) to declare the name of the Lord in Sion,
and his praise in Jerusalem, 22(21) when peoples gather together,
and kingdoms, to be subject to the Lord.
23(22) He answered him in the way of his strength, “Tell me the paucity of my days.
24(23) Do not take me away at the mid-point of my days,
while your years aree in generation of generations!”
25(24) At the beginning it was you, O Lord, who founded the earth,
and the heavens are works of your hands.
26(25) They will perish, but you will endure,
and they will all become old like a garment.
27(26) Likef clothing you will change them,
and they will be changed.
28(27) But you are the same,
and your years will not fail.
29(28) The sons of your slaves shall encamp, and their offspring shall prosper for ever.

Psalm 102(103)

1 Pertaining to David.
(1) Bless the Lord, O my soul,
and all that is within me, his holy name.
2 Bless the Lord, O my soul,
and do not forget all his repayments—who is very conciliatory toward all your acts of lawlessness,
who heals all your diseases,
who redeems your life from corruption,
who crowns you with mercy and compassion,
who satisfies your desire with good,
your youth will be renewed like an eagle’s.

One who performs acts of pity is the Lord and judgment for all who are being wronged.
He made known his ways to M0yses, to the sons of Israel his will.
He will not be totally angry,
nor will he keep his wrath forever.
Not according to our sins did he deal with us,
nor according to our acts of lawlessness did he repay us, because, as the sky is high above the earth,
he strengthened his mercy toward those who fear him;
as far as east is from west,
he has removed from us our acts of lawlessness.
As a father has compassion for sons,
the Lord has had compassion for those who fear him,
because he knew our makeup.
Remember that we are dust!
As for man, his days are like grass;
like a flower of the field, so it will bloom,
because a breath passed through it, and it will be gone,
and it will no longer recognize its place.
But the mercy of the Lord is from everlasting even to everlasting on those who fear him, his righteousness on sons’ sons,
for those who keep his covenant and remember his commandments, to do them.
The Lord prepared his throne in the sky,
and his kingdom rules over all.
Bless the Lord, O all you, his angels, powerful in strength doing his bidding, to obey the voice of his words.
Bless the Lord, all his hosts, his ministers doing his will.
Bless the Lord, all his works,
in every place of his dominion.
Bless the Lord, O my soul.

Psalm 103(104)

Pertaining to David.

1 Bless the Lord, O my soul.
O Lord my God, you were greatly magnified.
With acknowledgment and splendor you were clothed, wrapping yourself in light as in a garment, stretching out the sky like a skin.
He who covers his upper stories with waters,
he who makes cloud masses his step-up,
he who walks about on wings of winds.
He who makes spirits his messengers, and flaming fire his ministers.

He founded the earth on its stability; it will never ever be tilted.
The deep like a garment is his clothing; above the mountains the waters will stand.
At your rebuke they will flee; at a voice of your thunder they will cower with fright.
Mountains ascend, and plains descend to a spot that you founded for them.
A boundary you set that they shall not pass, nor shall they return to cover the earth.
He who make springs gush forth in ravines; between the mountains they will flow.
They will give drink to all the animals of the field;
onagers will receive for their thirst.
On them the birds of the air will encamp; from among the rocks they will give forth sound.
When he waters mountains from his upper stories, with the fruit of your work the earth shall be fed, when he causes grass to grow for the cattle, and plants for the service of human beings, to bring forth bread from the earth.
And wine gladdens a human heart, to brighten a face with oil, and bread sustains a human heart.
The trees of the plain shall be fed, the cedars of Lebanon, which he planted.
There sparrows will build their nests; the home of the heron leads them.
The high mountains are for the does; a rock is a refuge for the hares.
He made a moon for seasons; the sun knew its setting.
You set darkness, and it became night; in it all the animals of the forest will pass through,

and to his labor until the evening.
24 How magnified were your works, O Lord!
In wisdom you made them all;
the earth was filled with your acquisition.
25 This great and wide sea;
there creeping things innumerable,
living things, small with great.
26 There ships travel,
this dragon that you formed to mock at him.
27 All look to you
to give them food in due season;
when you give to them, they will gather,
and when you open your hand, ball things togetherb will be filled with kindness.
28 But when you turn away your face, they will be dismayed;
you cancel their spirit, and they will fail and return to their dust.
29 You will send forth your spirit, and they will be created,
and you will renew the face of the ground.
30 You will send forth your spirit, and they will be created,
and you will renew the face of the ground.
31 Let the glory of the Lord be forever.
The Lord will be glad at his works—32 he who looks on the earth and makes it tremble, who touches the mountains and they smoke.
33 I will sing to the Lord in my life;
I will make music to my God while I have being.
34 May my conversation be pleasing to him,
and I will be glad in the Lord!
35 May sinners fail from the earth,
and the lawless, so that they be no more.
Bless the Lord, O my soul.

Psalm 104(105)

1 Hallelouia.

(1) Acknowledge the Lord, and call on his name;
anounce his deeds among the nations.
2 Sing to him, and make music to him;
tell of all his wonderful things.
3 Be commended in his holy name;
let the heart of people that seek the Lord be glad.
4 Seek the Lord and be strengthened;
seek his face continually.
5 Remember the wonderful things which he did,
his miracles and the judgments of his mouth, 6 O offspring of Abraam, his slaves, sons of Iakob, his chosen.
7 The Lord himself is our God;
in all the earth are his judgments.
8 He remembered his covenant forever,
a word that he commanded for a thousand generations
—that he pledged to Abraam—and his oath to Isaak
And he established itc for Iakob as an ordinance and for Israel as an everlasting covenant, saying, “To you I will give the land of Chanaan as parcels for your inheritance.” 9 When they were small in number,
very few and resident aliens in it,
they also passed from nation to nation,
from kingdom to another people.
10 He allowed no person to do them wrong,
and he rebuked kings on their account, “Do not touch my anointed ones, and among my prophets do no harm.”
11 And he summoned famine against the land;
every sustenance of bread he crushed;
he sent a person ahead of them;
Ioseph was sold as a slave.
12 They debased his feet with fetters;
his soul passed through iron
until what he had said came to pass;
the saying of the Lord purified him.
13 A king sent out and released him,
a ruler of peoples, and set him free.
14 He made him lord of his house
and ruler of all his possessions,
to educate his officials to be like himself
and to teach his elders wisdom.
15 And Israel entered into Egypt, and Iakob lived as a resident alien in Cham's land.
16 And he increased his people very much
and made them strong beyond their enemies.
17 He changed their hearts to hate his people,
to deal craftily with his slaves.
18 They debased his feet with fetters;
his soul passed through iron
until what he had said came to pass;
the saying of the Lord purified him.
19 A king sent out and released him,
a ruler of peoples, and set him free.
20 He made him lord of his house
and ruler of all his possessions,
to educate his officials to be like himself
and to teach his elders wisdom.
21 And he increased his people very much
and made them strong beyond their enemies.
22 He changed their hearts to hate his people,
to deal craftily with his slaves.
23 He sent out Moyses, his slave,
Aaron, him whom he chose.
24 In them he placed the words of his signs and wonders in Cham's land.
25 He sent out darkness, and it grew dark,
and they did not Emitter his words.
26 He changed their waters into blood and killed their fish.

32 He made their showers hail;

33 And he struck their vines and their fig trees and shattered a tree of their territory.
34 He spoke, and the grasshopper came,
and locust larva without number,
and they devoured all the vegetation in their land
and devoured the fruit of their land.
35 And he struck every firstborn in their land,
first fruit of all their toil.
36 And he brought them out with silver and gold,
and there was no one among their tribes who was weak.
37 Egypt was glad at their exodus, because fear of them fell upon them.
38 He spread a cloud as a covering,
and fire to give light during the night.
39 They asked, and quail came,
and with heaven’s bread he filled them.
40 He split a rock, and waters gushed out;
rivers ran in waterless terrain, because he remembered his holy word to Abraam, his slave.
41 And he brought his people out with rejoicing, and his chosen ones with gladness.
42 And he gave them lands of nations, and labors of peoples they inherited,
that they might keep his statutes and seek out his law.

Psalm 105(106)

1 Hallelouia.

(1) Acknowledge the Lord, because he is kind,
because his mercy is forever.
2 Who shall speak of the acts of dominance of
the Lord,
make heard all his praises?
3 Happy are those who observe justice and do righteousness at every opportunity.
4 Remember us, O Lord, in the good pleasure of your people;
regard us in your deliverance, that we may look at the kindness of your chosen ones,
that we may be glad in the gladness of your nation,
that we may be commended with your heritage.
5 We sinned together with our fathers;
we acted lawlessly; we committed injustice.
6 Our fathers in Egypt did not consider your wonderful works;
they did not remember the abundance of your mercy and embittered, when going up at the Red Sea.
7 And he saved them for his name's sake,
to make known his dominance.
8 And he rebuked the Red Sea, and it became dry, and he guided them in the deep as in a wilderness.
9 And he saved them from the hand of people that hate and redeemed them from an enemy’s hand.
10 And water covered those that afflicted them;
not one of them was left.
11 And they believed in his words,
and they sang his praise.
12 They were quick to forget his works;
they did not wait for his counsel.
13 And they craved with craving in the wilderness
and put God to the test in a waterless region,
14 And he gave them their request and sent surfeit into their souls.
15 And they angered Moyses in the camp,
Aarond, the holy one of the Lord.
16 The earth opened and swallowed up Dathan and covered the company of Abiron.
17 And fire broke out in their company;
a flame burned up sinners.
18 And they made a calf at Choreb and did obeisance to the carved image.
19 And they exchanged their glory for a likeness of a bull calf that eats grass.
20 They forgot the God who was saving them, who did great things in Egypt, wondrous things in Cham’s land;
awesome things by the Red Sea.
21 And he spoke in order to destroy them—had not Moyses, his chosen one, stood in the breach before him,
to turn away his wrath from destroying.
22 And they despised a desirable land;
they had no faith in his word.
23 And they grumbled in their coverts;
they did not listen to the voice of the Lord.
24 And he raised his hand against them,
to cast them down in the wilderness.

and to cast down their offspring among the nations and scatter them in the lands.

And they were initiated to Beelphegor and ate sacrifices of the dead, and they provoked him with their practices,
and the falling broke out among them.
And Phinees stood and made atonement,
and the breach abated.
And it was reckoned to him as righteousness to generation and generation forever.

And they angered him at a water of contention,
and it went ill with Moyse on their account,
because they made his spirit bitter,
and he sparted with his lips.

They did not destroy the nations, which the Lord told them,
and they mingled with the nations and learned their works.
And they were subject to their carved images,
and it became to them a stumbling block.
And they sacrificed their sons and their daughters to the demons, and they poured out innocent blood, blood of their sons and daughters whom they sacrificed to the carved images of Chanaan, and the land was b murdered with blood.
And it was defiled by their acts,
and they played the prostitute in their practices.

And the Lord became furiously angry with his people,
and he abhorred his heritage,
and he gave them into the hands of nations,
and those who hated them ruled over them.
And their enemies oppressed them,
and they were brought low under their hands.
Many times he rescued them,
but they embittered him by their purposes and were brought low by their lawlessness.
And he regarded them when they were being afflicted,
when he listened to their petition.
And he remembered his covenant and showed regret according to the abundance of his mercy.
And he gave them over to be pitied before all who took them captive.

Save us, O Lord our God,
and gather us from among the nations,
boast in your praise.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, from everlasting even to everlasting.
And all the people shall say, "May it be; may it be."

BOOK V
(Psalms 106(107)–151)

Psalm 106(107)

Hallelouia.

(1) Acknowledge the Lord, because he is kind,
because his mercy is forever.

Let those redeemed by the Lord say so,
whom he redeemed from an enemy's hand.
From the lands he gathered them in,
from east and west and north and sea.

They wandered in the wilderness in a waterless region;
a way to a city of habitation they did not find,
being hungry and thirsty;
their soul fainted within them.
And they cried to the Lord when they were being afflicted, and from their anguish he rescued them
and led them by a straight way, to go to a city of habitation.

Let them acknowledge the Lord for his mercies
and for his wonderful works to the sons of men, because he fed an empty soul and a hungry soul he filled with good things, when they sat in darkness and death's shadow, imprisoned in poverty and iron,
because they had embittered the sayings of God,
and the counsel of the Most High they had provoked.
And their heart was brought low by exertion;
they became weak, and there was no one to help.

And they cried to the Lord when they were being afflicted,
and from their anguish he saved them,
and he brought them out of darkness and death's shadow,
and their bonds he broke asunder.

Let them acknowledge the Lord for his mercies
and gather us from among the nations,
that we may acknowledge your holy name;
boast in your praise.

Book V
(1) Possibly spoke rashly  bI.e. rendered lifeless with bloodshed and for his wonderful works to the sons of men, 16 because he shattered bronze gates and iron bars he crumpled.

He aided them from their lawless way,
for on account of their lawless acts they were brought low;
any kind of food their soul loathed,
and they drew near to the gates of death.
And they cried to the Lord when they were being afflicted,
and from their anguish he saved them;
he sent out his word and healed them
and rescued them from their corruption.
Let them acknowledge the Lord for his mercies
and for his wonderful works to the sons of men.
And let them sacrifice a sacrifice of praise and tell of his deeds with rejoicing.

Those who used to go down to the sea in ships, doing business on many waters—
it was they who saw the deeds of the Lord and his wondrous works in the deep.
He spoke and the tempest's blast stood,
and its waves were raised on high.
They mount up as far as the heavens,
and they go down as far as the depths;
their soul would melt away in calamity;
they were troubled; they staggered like the drunkard,
and all their wisdom was gulped down.
And they cried to the Lord when they were being afflicted,
and out of their anguish he brought them,
and he ordered the tempest, and it subsided to a breeze,
and its waves became silent.
And they were glad, because they had quiet,
and he guided them to a haven of their want.
Let them acknowledge the Lord for his mercies
and for his wonderful works to the sons of men.

He turned rivers into a wilderness and channels of water into thirst, a fruitful land into a salt marsh,
due to the evil of its inhabitants.
He turned a wilderness into pools of water and a parched land into channels of water.
And there he settled hungry ones,
and they established a city for settlement,
and they sowed fields and planted vineyards and produced a fruit of a yield.
And he blessed them, and they were multiplied greatly,
and their cattle he did not decrease.
And they were diminished and maltreated through affliction, wrong and sorrow.
Contempt poured down on rulers,
and he made them wander in an impassable and trackless region,
and he helped a needy one out of poverty and made their paternal families like sheep.
The upright will see it and be glad,
and all lawlessness will stop its mouth.
Who is wise and will keep these things?—
and will they take note of the mercies of the Lord?

Psalm 108(109)

1 Regarding completion. Pertaining to David. A Psalm.

(1) O God, do not pass over my praise in silence,
2 because a sinner’s mouth and a deceiver’s mouth—it was opened against me;
they spoke against me with a deceitful tongue.
3 And they surrounded me with words of hate and made war on me without cause.
4 In return for my love they would slander me,
but I, I would pray.
5 And they rewarded me evil for good and hatred for my love:
6 “Appoint a sinner against him,
and let a slanderer stand on his right.
7 When he is tried, may he come out condemned, and let his prayer be counted as sin.
8 Let his days become few,
and may another seize his position.
9 Let his sons become orphans, and his wife a widow.
10 As they totter, let his sons wander about and beg;
let them be driven out of their homesteads.
11 Let a creditor scrutinize all that he has;
let strangers plunder his toils.
12 Let there be no one to support him nor anyone to pity his orphans.
13 Let his children go to destruction;
in one generation let his name be blotted out.
14 May the lawlessness of his fathers be remembered before the Lord, and may the sin of his mother not be blotted out.
15 Let them be before the Lord continually, and may their memory be destroyed from earth, 16 since he did not remember to do mercy and pursued to death a person needy and poor and stunned in heart.
17 And he loved cursing, and it shall come on him.
And he did not want blessing, and it shall be put far away from him.
18 And he clothed himself with cursing as his coat, and it entered into his inwards like water
and like oil in his bones.
19 Let it be like a coat that he wraps around himself and like a belt that he always wears.”
20 This is the work from the Lord against those that slander me and those that speak evil against my soul.
21 And you, O Lord, Lord, do mercy with me for your name’s sake,
because your mercy is kind.
22 Rescue me, because poor and needy I am,
and my heart is troubled within me.
23 Like a shadow when it fades, I was erased;
I was shaken off like grasshoppers.
24 My knees became weak from fasting,
and my flesh was changed because of oil.
25 And I, I became a reproach to them;
they saw me; they shook their heads.
26 Help me, O Lord, my God!
Save me according to your mercy.
27 And let them know that this is your hand,
and you, O Lord, you did it.
28 They will curse, but you will bless.
Let my opponents be put to shame,
but your slave will be glad.
29 Let those who slander me be clothed with embarrassment, and let them be wrapped in their own shame as in a double cloak.
30 I will greatly acknowledge the Lord with my mouth, and in the midst of many I will praise him, because he stood at the right of a needy one,
to save my soul from those that keep pursuing.

Their helper and their protector is he.

20 The Lord was mindful of us and blessed us;
blessed the house of Israel;
blessed the house of Aaron;
blessed those who fear the Lord,
the small with the great.

22 May the Lord add to you,
to you and your sons.

23 Blessed are you?
to the Lord,
who made the sky and the earth.

The sky of the sky belongs to the Lord,
but the earth he gave to the sons of men.

The dead will not praise you, O Lord,
nor will all who go down to Hades.

But we that are alive will bless the Lord,
from now on and forevermore.

Psalm 114 (116.1–9)

1 Hallelouia.

1 I loved, because the Lord will listen to the voice of my petition, because he inclined his ear to me,
and in my days I will call.

3 Pangs of death encompassed me;
hazards of Hades found me;
affliction and grief I found.

Psalm 115 (116.10–19)

1 Hallelouia.

10 I believed; therefore I spoke,
but I, I was brought very low.

11 I, I said in my alarm,
"Every person is a liar."

13 What shall I return to the Lord for all that he returned to me?

14 A cup of deliverance I will take,
and the name of the Lord I will call upon.

15 Precious before the Lord is the death of his devout ones.

16 Ah Lord, I am a slave of yours;
I am a slave of yours and son of your serving girl.

18 To you I will sacrifice a sacrifice of praise.

20 My vows to the Lord I will pay before all his people, in courts of the Lord's house,
in your midst, O Jerusalam.

Psalm 116 (117)

1 Hallelouia.

1 Praise the Lord, all you nations!
Commend him, all you peoples,
because his mercy became strong toward us,
and the truth of the Lord endures forever.

Psalm 117 (118)

1 Hallelouia.

1 Acknowledge the Lord, because he is good,
because his mercy is forever.

2 Do let Israel's house say that he is good,
because his mercy is forever.

3 Do let Aaron's house say that he is good,
because his mercy is forever.
Psalm 117(118)–118(119)

4 Do let all those who fear the Lord say that he is good,
because his mercy is forever.
5 In affliction I called on the Lord, and he hearkened me into spaciousness.

The Lord is a helper to me;
I will not fear what a person may do to me.

7 The Lord is a helper to me,
and I, I shall observe my enemies.
8 It is better to trust in the Lord than to trust in a person.
9 It is better to hope in the Lord than to hope in rulers.

10 All nations surrounded me, and in the name of the Lord I fended
them off!
11 In surrounding they surrounded me,
and in the name of the Lord I fended
them off!
12 They surrounded me like bees a honeycomb, and they blazed like a fire among thorns,
and in the name of the Lord I fended
them off!

13 Pushed hard I turned to fall,
and the Lord supported me.
14 My strength and my celebration is the Lord, and he became deliverance for me.

15 There is a voice of rejoicing and deliverance in the righteous' tents:
"The Lord's right hand produced power;
the Lord's right hand exalted me;
the Lord's right hand produced power."
16 I shall not die, but I shall live and recount the deeds of the Lord.
17 In disciplining the Lord disciplined me,
and to death he did not surrender me.

18 Open to me gates of righteousness;
when I enter in them,
I will acknowledge the Lord.
19 This is the gate of the Lord;
righteous ones shall enter in it.
20 I will acknowledge you because you
hearkened to me
and became deliverance for me.
21 A stone which the builders rejected, is this one became the chief cornerstone.
22 This was from the Lord,
it is marvelous in our eyes.
23 This is the day that the Lord made;
let us rejoice and be glad in it.
24 Ah Lord, do save!
Ah Lord, do give success!

26 Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord.
We bless you from the house of the Lord.
27 The Lord is God, and he showed us light.
Arrange a feast with the thick ones,
up to the horns of the altar.
28 My God you are, and I will acknowledge you;
my God you are, and I will exalt you.
I will acknowledge you because you
hearkened to me
and became deliverance for me.

29 Acknowledge the Lord, because he is good,
because his mercy is forever.

Psalm 118(19)

1 Hallelouia.

2 Happy are the blameless in way, who walk in the Lord's law.
3 Happy are those who search out his testimonies;
wholeheartedly they will seek him.
4 For those who practice lawlessness did not walk in his ways.
5 It is you who commanded your commandments to keep diligently.
6 O that my ways may be directed to keep your statutes!
7 Then I shall not be put to shame,
as I regard all your commandments.
8 Your statutes I will observe;
do not utterly forsake me.

9 How shall the young keep his way straight?
By observing your words!
10 With my whole heart I sought you;
do not thrust me aside from your commandments.
11 In my heart I hid your sayings
so that I may not sin against you.
12 Blessed are you, O Lord;
teach me your statutes.
13 With my lips I declared
all the judgments of your mouth.
14 In the way of your testimonies I delighted as much as in all riches.
15 In your commandments I will ponder and put my mind to your ways.
16 In your statutes I will meditate;
I will not forget your words.

20 My soul was consumed with longing for your judgments in every situation.

21 You rebuked arrogant ones;
accursed are those who deviate from your commandments;
take away from me reproach and contempt,

22 Indeed, rulers sat and kept railing at me, but your slave would ponder in your

23 Indeed, your testimonies are my meditation, and your statutes are my counsels.

29 Truth's way I chose;
your judgments I did not forget.

30 I clung to your testimonies;

35 Incline my heart to your testimonies

36 Turn my eyes from looking at vanity;
in your way quicken me.

37 Establish for your slave your saying,

38 Take away my scorn, which I suspected, for your judgments are kind.

39 See, I longed for your commandments;
in your righteousness quicken me.

43 And do not remove a word of truth utterly from my mouth, because I pinned my hopes on your judgments.

44 And I will keep your law continually, forever and forever and ever.

45 And I would walk in spaciousness, because your commandments I sought.

46 And I would meditate on your commandments,
which I loved very much.

47 And I raised my hands to your commandments, which I loved, and I would ponder in your statutes.

48 7 zai.

50 Arrogant ones would blatantly transgress the but from your law I did not deviate.

51 I remembered your judgments from of old,
O Lord,
and I took comfort.

52 Despondency beset me due to sinners,
those who keep forsaking your law.

53 Your statutes were musical to me in my place of sojourn.

54 I remembered your name at night, O Lord, and kept your law.

55 Thisc fell to me,

57 I implored your face with all my heart;

saying.

58 Your ways I considered, and I turned my feet to your testimonies;
I was prepared and not troubled to keep your commandments.

59 Cords of sinners ensnared me,
and your law I did not forget.

60 At midnight I would rise to acknowledge
you,
because of your righteous judgments.

61 I am a partner with all who fear you and with those who keep your commandments.

62 The earth, O Lord, is full of your mercy;
teach me your statutes.
You practiced kindness with your slave, O Lord, according to your word. Kindness and discipline and knowledge teach me, because in your commandments I believed. Before I was humbled I was in error; therefore I kept your saying. You are kind, O Lord, and in your kindness teach me your statutes. Injustice of the arrogant filled out against me, but I, with my whole heart, I will examine your commandments. Their heart was curdled like milk, but I, on your law I meditated. It was good for me that you humbled me so that I might learn your statutes. Better to me is the law of your mouth than thousands of gold and silver.

Your hands made and fashioned me; give me understanding, and I will learn your commandments. Those who fear you shall see me and be glad, because on your words I pinned my hopes. I knew, O Lord, that your judgments are righteousness and that with truth you humbled me. Do let your mercy come to comfort me according to your saying to your slave. Let your compassion come to me, and I shall live, because your law is my meditation. Let arrogant ones be put to shame, because they acted unjustly and lawlessly against me, but as for me, I will ponder in your commandments. Let those who fear you turn to me, and those who know your testimonies. Let my heart become blameless by your statutes so that I may not be put to shame.

My soul fails for your deliverance, and on your word I pinned my hopes. My eyes failed for your saying, saying, “When will you comfort me?” Because I became like a wineskin in hoarfrost, your statutes I did not forget. How many are the days of your slave? When will you do me right against those who persecute me? Transgressors of the law told me tales, but not so your law, O Lord. All your commandments are truth; unjustly did they persecute me; help me!

They almost made an end of me on the earth, but as for me, I did not forsake your commandments. In your mercy quicken me, and I will keep the testimonies of your mouth.

Forever, O Lord; your word endures in the sky, your truth to generation and generation; you founded the earth, and it endures. By your arrangement the day endures, because all things together are slaves of yours. If it were not for the fact that your law was my meditation, then I would have perished in my humiliation. Your statutes I will never forget, because by them you quickened me. Yours I am; save me, because your statutes I sought. Sinners waited for me to destroy me; your testimonies I considered. I saw a limit to all perfection; your commandment is exceedingly spacious.

Oh, how I loved your law, O Lord! All day long it is my meditation. Wiser than my enemies you made me regarding your commandment, because it is mine forever. More than all who were teaching me, I understood, because your testimonies were my meditation. More than the aged, I understood, because I sought out your commandments. From every way of evil I held back my feet in order to keep your words. From your judgments I did not deviate, because you legislated for me. How sweet are your sayings to my throat, beyond honey and honeycomb to my mouth! Due to your commandments, I understood; therefore I hated every way of injustice.

Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my paths. I have sworn an oath and confirmed, to observe your righteous judgments. I was deeply humbled; O Lord, quicken me according to your word. With the freewill offerings of my mouth do be pleased, O Lord, and your judgments teach me.

My soul was in my hands continually, and your law I did not forget.

Sinners laid a snare for me, and from your commandments I did not stray.

Your testimonies were my heritage forever, because they are my heart’s joy.

I inclined my heart to perform your statutes forever on account of an exchange.

Transgressors of the law I hated, and your law I loved.

You are my helper and my supporter; I pinned my hopes on your word.

Support me according to your saying, and I shall live, and do not put me to shame due to my expectation.

You despised all who stood aloof from your statutes, because their notion was wrong.

All the sinners of the earth I counted as transgressors; therefore I loved your testimonies.

Nail down my flesh from fear of you, for I was afraid of your judgments.

I did what was just and right; do not hand me over to those that do me wrong.

Accept your slave for good; let not arrogant ones extort from me.

My eyes failed for your deliverance and for the saying of your righteousness.

Deal with your slave according to your mercy, and teach me your statutes.

Your testimonies are righteousness forever; give me understanding, and I shall live.

My eyes got a head start at dawn, that I may meditate on your sayings.

Hear my voice, O Lord, according to your mercy; by your judgment quicken me.

Those who persecute me with lawlessness drew near, but they were put far from your law.

You are near, O Lord, and all your commandments are truth.

Long ago I learned from your testimonies that you established them forever.

Look upon me, and be merciful to me, as is your judgment toward those who love your name.

Direct my steps according to your saying, and do not let any lawlessness exercise dominion over me.

Redeem me from extortion of human beings, and I will keep your commandments.

Make your face shine upon your slave, and teach me your statutes.

My eyes shed streams of water, since they did not keep your law.

Righteous you are, O Lord, and upright is your judgment.

You commanded your testimonies to be righteousness and truth, very much.

Zeal for you wasted me, because my enemies forgot your words.

Your saying was well tried, and your slave loved it.

Rather young I am and of no account; your statutes I did not forget.

Your righteousness is righteousness forever, and your law is truth.

Affliction and anguish found me; your commandments are my meditation.

Your testimonies are righteousness forever; give me understanding, and I shall live.

Psalm 119(120)

1 An Ode of the Steps.

(1) When I was being afflicted, I cried to the Lord, and he listened to me:
2 "O Lord, rescue my soul from unjust lips and from a deceitful tongue."
3 What might be given to you, and what might be added to you, against a deceitful tongue?

4 The arrows of the powerful one are sharp, together with desert coals!
5 Woe is me, that my place of sojourn was put at a distance;
6 I encamped among the coverts of Kedar.
7 Very much did my soul sojourn.
8 Among those who hate peace (7) I was for peace;
9 when I would speak to them, they would fight me without reason.

Psalm 120(121)

1 An Ode of the Steps.

(1) I lifted up my eyes to the mountains— from where will my help come?
2 My help comes from the Lord, who made the sky and the earth.
3 Do not give your foot to shaking, nor let him who keeps you slumber.
4 Look, he who keeps Israel will neither slumber nor sleep.
5 The Lord will keep you; the Lord is your shelter at your right hand.
6 By day the sun shall not burn you up, nor the moon during the night.
7 The Lord will keep you from every evil; he will keep your soul.
8 The Lord will keep your coming in and your going out from now on and forevermore.

Psalm 121(122)

1 An Ode of the Steps.

(1) I was glad in those who had said to me, "To the Lord's house we shall go!"
2 Our feet stood in your courts, O Jerusalem.
3 Jerusalem—being built as a city that is shared in common.
4 For there the tribes went up, tribes of the Lord, as a testimony to Israel, to acknowledge the name of the Lord, because there thrones for judgment sat, thrones for David's house.

Psalm 124(125)

An Ode of the Steps.

he who inhabits Jerusalem will never be shaken.
2 Mountains are around her,
and the Lord is around his people,

3 “If I will enter into a covert of my house, if I go up on a bed of my spreading
4 if I will give sleep to my eyes and slumber to my eyelids and rest to my temples,
5 until I find a place for the Lord, a covert for the God of Jacob!”
6 Look, we heard of ita in Ephratha; we found ita in the plains of the forest.
7 “We shall enter into his coverts; we shall do obeisance at the place where his feet stood.”
8 Rise up, O Lord, into your rest, you and the ark of your sanctityb!
9 Your priests will clothe themselves with righteousness, and your devout will rejoice.
10 For your slave David’s sake do not turn away the face of your anointed one.

6 Remember, O Lord, against the sons of Edom, the day of Jerusalem,
   how they said, “Clear out! Clear out!
   As long as its foundation is in it!”
7 O daughter Babylon, you wretch!
   Happy shall he be who will requite you with the requital with which you requited us!
8 Happy shall he be who will grab your infants and dash them against the rock!

Psalm 137(138)

1 Pertaining to David.

(1) I will acknowledge you, O Lord, with my whole heart, because you heard the words of my mouth,
   and before angels I will make music to you.
2 I will do obeisance toward your holy shrine and acknowledge your name for your mercy and for your truth, because you magnified your saying upon every name.
3 In the day I call upon you, hearken to me quickly;
   you will care for me with power in my soul.
4 Let all the kings of the earth acknowledge you, O Lord, because they heard all the words of your mouth.
5 And let them sing in the ways of the Lord, because great is the glory of the Lord, because the Lord is high and he regards things that are lowly.

Psalm 138(139)

1 Regarding completion. A Psalm. Pertaining to David. A Psalm.

(1) O Lord, you examined me and knew me.
2 It was you who knew my sitting down and my rising up; it was you who discerned my thoughts from far away.
3 My path and my miles you tracked and all my ways foresaw, because there was no word on my tongue—
4 look, O Lord; it was you who knew all things, the last and the first.
5 It was you who shaped me and placed your hand upon me.
6 Your knowledge was made wonderful from me; it became strong; I can never attain to it.
7 Where should I go from your spirit? And from your face where should I flee?
8 If I ascend to the sky, you are there; if I descend to Hades, you are present.
9 If I were to take up my wings at dawn and make my covert at the farthest limits of the sea,
10 indeed, there your hand shall guide me, and your right hand shall hold me fast.
11 And I said, “So then, darkness shall trample me, and night be illumination in my delight,” because darkness will not be made dark due to you, and night will be illumined as day; as its darkness, so also its light.
12 Because it was you who procured my kidneys, O Lord, you supported me from my mother’s womb.
13 I will acknowledge you, because I was made awesomely wonderful. Wonderful are your works, and my soul knows very well.
14 My frame was not hidden from you, which you made in secret, and my substance in the deepest parts of the earth.
15 My unwrought state your eyes beheld, and in your book all shall be written; in a day they will be formed and no one among them.
16 But to me your friends were very much prized, O Lord. Their beginnings were much strengthened.
17 I shall count them, and they will be multiplied beyond sand; I awoke and I am still with you.

18 If you kill sinners, O God—
19 Because you will speak against contriving, they will take your cities into vanity.
20 Did I not hate those who hate you, O Lord? And at your enemies was I not wasting away!
21 I would hate them with perfect hatred; I counted them my enemies.
22 Examine me, O Lord, and know my heart; test me, and know my paths.
23 And see if there is a way of lawlessness in me, and guide me in a way everlasting.

Psalm 139(140)

1 Regarding completion. A Psalm. Pertaining to David.

2(1) Deliver me, O Lord, from an evil person; from an unjust man rescue me,
3(2) whoever schemed acts of injustice in their heart; all day long they kept waging wars.
4(3) They made their tongue sharp as a snake’s; venom of vipers is under their lips.

5(4) Guard me, O Lord, from a sinner’s hand; from unjust people deliver me— whoever schemed to trip up my steps.
6(5) Arrogant ones hid a trap for me, and they stretched cords, traps for my feet; close to a path they set an obstacle for me.

Interlude on strings

7(6) I said to the Lord, “My God you are; give ear, O Lord, to the voice of my petition.”
8(7) O Lord, Lord, power of my deliverance, you shaded my head in a day of battle.
9(8) Do not hand me over, O Lord, to a sinner due to my desire;
they schemed against me;

10(9) The head of their encirclement—mischief of their lips will cover them!
11(10) Coals will fall on them; with fire you will throw them down; in misery they will not bear up.
12(11) A garrulous man will not succeed in the land; evil will hunt down an unjust man to corruption!
13(12) I knew that the Lord would maintain the cause of the poor one and the case of the needy.
14(13) But the righteous shall acknowledge your name, and the upright shall live together with your presence.

Psalm 140(141)

1 A Psalm. Pertaining to Dauid.

(1) O Lord, I cried to you; listen to me; pay attention to the voice of my petition when I cry to you.
2 Let my prayer succeed as incense before you, a lifting up of my hands be an evening sacrifice.
3 Set a guard over my mouth, O Lord, and a door of constraint about my lips.
4 Do not incline my heart to words of evil, to concocting pretexts for sins, in company with people practicing lawlessness, and I shall not team up with their choice ones.
5 A righteous one shall discipline me with mercy and correct me, but let not a sinner’s oil anoint my head, because my prayer is continually against their contentment.
6 Their judges were swallowed up close to a rock; they shall hear my words, because they were made sweet.
7 As a clod of earth was crushed on the land, our bones were strewn beside Hades, because toward you, O Lord, Lord, were my eyes; in you I hoped; do not erase my soul.
8 Keep me from a trap that they set for me and from obstacles of those who practice lawlessness.
9 Sinners will fall into his net; alone I am until I pass by.

Psalm 141(142)

1 Of understanding. Pertaining to Dauid. When he was in the cave. A Prayer.

2(1) With my voice I cried to the Lord; with my voice I petitioned the Lord.
3(2) I will pour out my petition before him; my affliction I will announce before him.
4(3) When my spirit was failing me, you also knew my paths.

In the very way in which I would walk, they hid a trap for me.
5(4) I would look to my right and would observe that there was no one who recognized me; escape vanished from me, and there was no one to seek out my soul.

6(5) I cried to you, O Lord; I said, “You are my hope, my portion in the land of the living.”
7(6) Pay attention to my petition, because I was brought very low.

Rescue me from those that persecute me, because they became too strong for me.
8(7) Bring my soul out of prison so that I may acknowledge your name.
Righteous ones will wait for me until you requite me.

Psalm 142(143)

1 A Psalm. Pertaining to Dauid.

(1) O Lord, listen to my prayer; give ear to my petition in your truth; hearken to me in your righteousness.
2 And do not enter into judgment with your slave, because no one living will be counted righteous before you.
3 Because the enemy pursued my soul, he humbled my life to the ground; he made me sit in dark places like those long dead.
4 And my spirit became weary in me; within me my heart was troubled.
5 I remembered days of old, and I meditated on all your deeds; on works of your hands I would meditate.
6 I spread out my hands to you; my soul was like a parched land.

Psalm 143(144)

1 Pertaining to David.

(1) Blessed be the Lord, my God, who trains my hands for battle; my fingers for war;
2 my mercy and my refuge,
my supporter and my rescuer,
my protector and in him I hoped,
who subdues my people under me.
3 O Lord, what is man that you became known to him or a son of man that you reckon with him?
4 Man became like vanity;
his days are passing like a shadow.
5 O Lord, tilt your heavens, and come down; touch the mountains, and they will smoke.
6 Flash a lightning flash, and you will scatter them;
send out your arrows, and you will throw them into disarray.
7 Send out your hand from on high;
deliver me, and rescue me from many waters,
from the hand of sons of strangers,
whose mouth spoke vanity,
and their right hand was a right hand of
injustice.
8 O God, a new ode I will sing to you;
with a ten-stringed harp I will make music to you,
to you, who gives deliverance to kings, to you, who redeems his slave David from an evil sword.
9 Rescue me, and deliver me from the hand of sons of strangers,
whose mouth spoke vanity,
and their right hand was a right hand of
injustice,
10 whose sons are like young plants mature in their youth.
Their daughters have been beautified, decorated like a replica of a shrine.
11 Their storehouses are full, bursting from side to side.
Their sheep are prolific, multiplying in their issue.
12 Their cattle are massive.
There is no collapsing of fence nor a break-through nor a cry in their streets.
13 They counted happy the people to whom these things fall;
happy are the people, those whose God is the Lord.

Psalm 144(145)

1 Praise. Pertaining to David.

(1) I will exalt you, my God, my King, and bless your name forever and ever.
2 Every day I will bless you and praise your name forever and ever.
3 Great is the Lord, and very much praiseworthy,
and to his greatness there is no limit.
4 Generation and generation shall commend your works,
and your power they shall declare.
5 Of the magnificence of the glory of your holiness they shall speak, and your wondrous works they shall recount.
6 And the power of your awesome deeds they shall relate,
and your greatness they shall recount.
7 Mention of the abundance of your kindness
they shall gush forth,
and at your righteousness they shall rejoice.
8 Compassionate and merciful is the Lord, slow to anger and abounding in mercy.
9 Kind is the Lord to all things together,
and his compassion is over all his works.
10 Let all your works acknowledge you, O Lord, and let all your devout bless you.
11 Your kingdom's glory they shall relate,
and of your dominion they shall speak,
to make known to the sons of men your dominion and the glory of the magnificent of your kingdom.
Your kingdom is a kingdom of all the ages,
your dominion is in every generation and generation.
Faithful is the Lord in his words,
and devout in all his works.
The Lord upholds all who are falling and sets upright all who are cast down.
The eyes of all hope in you,
and it is you who give them their food in due season.
You, you open your hand and satisfy every living thing with a good pleasure.
Just is the Lord in all his ways,
and devout in all his works.
Near is the Lord to all who call on him,
to all who call on him in truth.
The will of all who fear him he will do,
and to their petition he will hearken and will save them.
The Lord watches over all who love him,
and all the sinners he will destroy.
Praise of the Lord my mouth will speak, and let all flesh bless his holy name forever and ever.

Psalm 145(146)

Hallelouia.
Praise the Lord, O my soul!
I will praise the Lord in my life;
I will make music to my God while I have being.
Do not put your trust in rulers and in sons of men, who have no deliverance.
His breath will depart, and he will return to his earth;
in that very day all their designs will perish.
Happy is he whose helper is the God of Jacob;
his hope is in the Lord his God,
who made the sky and the earth,
the sea and all that is in them,
who guards truth forever,
executing judgment for the wronged,
giving food to the hungry.
The Lord releases prisoners.
The Lord sets upright those cast down;
the Lord makes the blind skilled;
the Lord loves the righteous.
The Lord watches over the guests;
orphan and widow he will pick up,
and a way of sinners he will wipe out.
The Lord will be king forever,
your God, O Sion, for generation and generation.

Psalm 146(147.1–11)

Praise the Lord,
because a melody is a good thing;
to our God may praise be pleasing.
When the Lord builds Jerusalem,
he will also gather in the dispersions of Israel,
he who heals the broken in heart and binds up their fractures, he who numbers multitudes of stars and to all of them gives names.
Great is our Lord, and great is his strength, and of his understanding there is no sum,
when the Lord picks up the meek
but humbles sinners to the ground.
Lead off to the Lord with acknowledgment;
make music to our God on a lyre,
to him who cloaks the sky with clouds,
to him who prepares rain for the earth,
to him who makes grass grow on mountains, giving to the animals their food
and to the young of ravens that call on him.
To the dominance of the horse he will not be disposed,
nor with the shanks of the man is he pleased.
The Lord is pleased with those who fear him and with those who hope in his mercy.

Psalm 147(147.12–20)

Commend the Lord, O Jerusalem; praise your God, O Sion,
because he strengthened the bars of your gates;
his hope is in the Lord his God,
who made the sky and the earth,
the sea and all that is in them,
who guards truth forever,
executing judgment for the wronged,
giving food to the hungry.
The Lord releases prisoners.

619

He will send out his word and will melt them;

Psalm 148

1 Hallelouia.
Praise the Lord from the heavens;
praise him in the highest heights!
2 Praise him, all his angels;
praise him, all his hosts!

he commanded, and they were created.
6 He established them forever and ever;

7 Praise the Lord from the earth,
you dragons and all deeps,
fire, hail, snow, ice,
tempest blast, those things that do his word!
8 The mountains and all the hills,
fruit trees and all cedars!
9 The wild animals and all the cattle, creeping things and winged birds!
10 Kings of the earth and all peoples, rulers and all judges of earth!
11 Young men and unmarried women, old with young!
12 Let them praise the name of the Lord, because he spoke, and they came to be;
because he commanded, and they were created.
13 He established them forever and ever;
an ordinance he issued, and it will not pass away.
14 Praise him, you heavens of heavens and you water above the heavens!

Psalm 149

1 Hallelouia.
Sing to the Lord a new song;
his praises are an assembly of devout.
2 Let Israel be glad in the one who made it,
and let the sons of Sion rejoice in their king.
3 Let them praise his name with a dance;
with drum and harp let them make music to him,
because the Lord takes pleasure in his people,
and he exalts the meek with deliverance.
The devout will boast in glory,
and they will rejoice on their beds.
The exaltations of God are in their throats,
and two-edged swords in their hands,
to execute vengeance among the nations,
rebukes among the peoples,
to bind their kings with fetters and their nobles with iron handcuffs, to execute among them a judgment inscribed.
This glory is for all his devout.

Psalm 150

1 Hallelouia.

2 Praise him for his acts of dominion;
praise him according to the abundance of his greatness!
3 Praise him with trumpet sound;
praise him with harp and lyre!
4 Praise him with drum and dance;
praise him with strings and instrument!
5 Praise him with loud clashing cymbals!
6 Let all breath praise the Lord!

Psalm 151: Prayer of Manasses

My brothers were handsome and tall, and the Lord did not take delight in them.

I went out to meet the allophyle, and he cursed me by his idols.

But I, having drawn the dagger from him, I beheaded him and removed reproach from Israel’s sons.

Prayer of Manasses

(Ode 12)

O Lord Almighty, God of our fathers, of Abraam and Isaak and Jakob and of their righteous offspring.

You who made the sky and the earth together with all their order, you who shackled the sea by the word of your ordinance, you who shut up the deep and sealed it with your awesome and notable name, at whom all things shudder and tremble from before your power, because the magnificence of your glory cannot be borne, and the wrath of your threat against sinners cannot be withstood;

both immeasurable and inscrutable is the mercy of your promise, because you are Lord Most High, compassionate, slow to anger and abounding in mercy and repenting at ills of human beings.

So you, O Lord God of the righteous, you did not appoint repentance for righteous ones, for Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, who had not sinned against you, but you appointed repentance for me, the sinner, because I sinned beyond the number of the sand of the sea.

My acts of lawlessness multiplied, O Lord, they multiplied, and I am not worthy to gaze at and see the height of the sky, due to the multitude of my injustices.

Bent down I am by many a fetter of iron, for me to say, "No," over my sins. And I find no relief, because I provoked your anger and did what was evil before you, having set up abominations and having multiplied objects of wrath.

And now I bend my heart’s knee, begging for kindness from you.

I have sinned, O Lord; I have sinned, and my lawless acts I know.

I plead, begging you; relieve me, O Lord; relieve me! Do not destroy me together with my acts of lawlessness nor be angry forever and retain evil for me nor condemn me in the deepest places of the earth, because you, O Lord, are the God of those who repent, and in me show your goodness, because, though unworthy, you will save me according to your abundant mercy, and I will praise you always throughout the days of my life, because all the host of the heavens will sing a hymn to you, and yours is the glory forever. Amen.
